To whom it concerns:

Out of forty entries in the "Timeline of Events" you wrote about me, twenty-eight are false.
I did not reach that number by reading your document and disagreeing with it. I went through it entry by entry against the record: every email, every letter, every records production, and the recordings. Where your document paraphrases, the paraphrase is gone and what was actually said stands in its place, in the speaker's own words, at a timestamp that opens the audio at that second. Where it describes a conversation, the conversation is linked. Where it asserts a date, the message carrying the date is linked. Nine entries survived that. One is partly true. Twenty-eight are false.
Your document's own properties are part of the record now. Created the morning after my dismissal, hours before I was called. Twenty-three revisions. 193 minutes of editing across ten months. Last edited on January 21, 2026, five days after I gave notice of a claim under 42 U.S.C. § 1983. Never shown to me. Given to the Oregon State Police. One year to the day after my dismissal, men with guns who read that document came to my home.
The revision is published at https://oprdvolunteerabuse.org/sunlight/. There is a PDF version attached as well.
