This is generally my return path.

I want to take the 140 in from Nevada - that stretch of highway is so remote for a hundred miles and it's just something to experience!

And before that - just before I return to Tugman - I can be near Great Basin, one of the darkest skies in our country, just as the meteor showers begin.

After that, I may never leave Oregon again. This will probably be the last time I travel like this.

And other travel will be the coast line - probably into Washington at some point because it feels strange to me to ignore it. But Oregon is home. 🙄
