Dear OPRD Staff Member,

Thank you for your leadership and support of OPRD's volunteer programs. Volunteers are an integral part of our agency, and we simply could not provide the level of experience our visitors expect without their tremendous support. Volunteers keep our campgrounds green and clean, maintain trails and wildlife habitat areas, enhance visitor experience, build the connection between our agency and the communities we serve, and support OPRD in countless other programs and activities.

The accomplishments of OPRD volunteers is only made possible through the efforts of our staff in creating engaging volunteer experiences. By creating impactful volunteer experiences and recognizing the efforts of those who donate their time to strengthen our agency, you're not only enabling OPRD to meet the high expectations of service park users and program participants, you're also fostering community relationships and stewardship of public lands. It is through your work and dedication to volunteer programs that volunteer relationships grow, connections to our outstanding parks and important places are enhanced, and we can truly provide and protect Oregon's public lands for the enjoyment and education of present and future generations.

Sincerely,

Lisa Sumption
Director

Mission of OPRD

To provide and protect outstanding natural, scenic, cultural, historic and recreational sites for the enjoyment and education of present and future generations.

Purpose of this Handbook

This handbook was created to be a resource for OPRD staff who work with volunteers and manage volunteer programs. This handbook is the procedure for VOL.010.000 Volunteer Management Policy and serves as a guide for OPRD staff to put the policy in practice in their management units and divisions. This handbook lays out practices for OPRD to be more consistent in how it manages volunteers, while at the same time giving staff the tools to create and coordinate volunteer programs that support their Unit's specific goals.

Located in the appendix of this guidebook are the most current volunteer forms, additional resources, and "how to" instructional guides. Although the materials contained within the handbook are meant as a resource for staff, this book is not the sole resource available. If a management unit or division has questions on anything included or not included in this handbook or the volunteer policy, their Regional Program Coordinator and the Statewide Volunteer Program Coordinator are always available to provide assistance and guidance whenever it is requested.

Additionally, if there are topics or materials that are not included in this handbook that would support OPRD Volunteer Programs, please send your feedback and comments directly to Allison Watson, the Statewide Volunteer Programs Coordinator: allison.watson@oregon.gov.

Ranger and Staff Roles:

Volunteer Service Leader (VSL): At each unit, there is typically one ranger that is the lead for volunteer coordination at the MU. In some cases, a park manager may identify more than one ranger to support this work. At OPRD, we refer to a park ranger who has been assigned the lead on volunteer coordination for their unit, as a Volunteer Service Leader. In the past, this was referred to as a host coordinator. However, as units manage other volunteer types, outside of park hosts, the Volunteer Service Leader title is a more accurate reflection of their duties.

Park Manager or Unit Manager: The park manager or unit manager is responsible for determining the size, scope, and type of volunteer program that meets their management unit's goals. The park manager is also responsible for delegating volunteer program tasks appropriately to their staff and for leading sensitive and disciplinary conversations with volunteers.

Regional Program Coordinator (RPC): Each region has a regional program coordinator, who provides support for district managers, park managers, and rangers in their region with program support. One of the programs they provide support for is the volunteer program. RPCs assist parks with their needs for volunteers, provide assistance and training for new staff on the volunteer program, and set region standards and expectations that align with statewide program direction. Typically, if you have a question about any part of your unit's volunteer program, the region program coordinator will have the answer you need, or will be able to find someone who can get you the answer.

Statewide Volunteer Programs Coordinator: Responsible for statewide consistency in implementation and administration of the volunteer program, all related policies and procedures, and statewide communication with staff and volunteers. Works closely with the RPCs to coordinate regional administration of the program. Overall support for staff and volunteers involved in OPRD programs.

Volunteer Assignment Types

There are endless opportunities for volunteers with OPRD, but there are only four assignment types for individual volunteers that are used to manage those opportunities. Those assignment types are: park host/residential volunteers, individual volunteers, episodic volunteers, internship/service learner volunteers. This section provides an overview of each volunteer assignment type, including the requirements and resources available for each.

Park Hosts & Residential Volunteers

Park host volunteers are stewards of Oregon's 256 state parks properties. As representatives of OPRD, they provide support for park guests, staff, and our public lands. Park hosts serve in specific assignments that can vary from park to park. Generally, park hosts serve in one of the following specific park host opportunities:

- Campground Host
- Day-Use Host
- Interpretive Host
- Visitor Services Host
- Maintenance Host
- Cabin and Yurt Host
- Special Project Host

Volunteer Requirements for Park Hosts

In addition to the specific requirements a management unit or division sets for a residential volunteer assignment, all residential volunteers must be at least 18 years old.

To see what on-boarding forms and trainings are required for this volunteer assignment, go to the Volunteer Assignment Requirements Matrix, in the appendix on page 60.

Safety Training

As park hosts, volunteers are classified as subject workers, the assignment requirements for safety training and documentation are similar to that of an employee. As such, all park host volunteers are required to:

- Complete OPRD's required park host safety training:
<https://sites.google.com/view/oprd-safety-training/home>.
- Receive on-site training related to the specific assignment duties and location they where they are volunteering.

Go to pages 27 & 46 for specific information on park host required safety training, including direct links to training.

Discrimination and Harassment Training

The State of Oregon's Discrimination and Harassment Free Workplace training is required for all park hosts, residential volunteers, and those in individual on-going volunteer assignments. This training is required to be completed annually and is no longer available for park hosts on iLearn.gov.

Direct volunteers to complete their statewide Discrimination and harassment training online here:

<https://sites.google.com/view/oprddiscriminationharassmenttr/home>

This training, when completed online, will be updated on a volunteer's OPRIS profile by volunteer programs staff on a weekly basis.

Information Security Training: Foundations

Oregon's requires all staff and certain volunteers to take Information Security Training: Foundations. OPRD has a formal exception that waives this requirement for volunteers as long as the following activities and responsibilities are not a part of their service:

- Use of an Oregon.gov email address.
- Use of a personally assigned OPRD mobile device or laptop.
- Volunteer work directs individual to use an OPRD computer or device with access to servers and/or access other sensitive databases.
- Use of a key, or keycard access to OPRD buildings with sensitive files.
- Access to confidential contract and/or personal information on vendors, contractors, volunteers, visitors, staff, and/or any partners of OPRD.

If a volunteer will be serving in a role where one or more of those activities will be a part of service, they will need to complete Security Training: Foundations on iLearn.gov prior to their service start date. This training is required annually. If you need assistance in giving a volunteer access to this training on iLearn.gov, contact the statewide volunteer programs coordinator.

Length of Schedule

Schedule

MU must set a standard schedule for a specific assignment, or mutually agree upon a schedule with an individual volunteer. This must be documented in writing, in either the volunteer assignment description or another document. Volunteers are able to engage in an assignment where they are on-call, but the on-call hours must be scheduled, so it is clear when a volunteer is actively in service.

Schedule Examples:

- Wednesday – Sunday, 2:00 pm – 4:00 pm (on call), 4:00 pm – 6:00 pm (wood sales).
- Saturday & Sunday, 12:00 pm – 5:00 pm, campsite clean up as needed. Monday & Tuesday, special projects approximately 5 hours each day, service to be done anytime between 8:00 am - 4:00 pm.
- Thursday-Sunday, approximately 5 hours each day for a specific task, service to be done between the hours 11:00 am – 6:00 pm.

Minimums

There is no minimum hour or day amount, required for a park host or residential volunteer assignment. Common practice is to set a minimum length of service for one month, but a park manager may set the minimum length of service stay for whatever they deem appropriate (one week, weekend, etc.).

Maximums

Residential volunteers may reside at the same OPRD property location for a maximum of 3 consecutive months.

The intent of residential stay limits is to avoid having volunteers perform continuous service within a management unit, to affirm volunteer vs. employee roles, and ensure service opportunities are available for new volunteers.

Exception: OPRD MU managers may extend a residential volunteer's time at an OPRD property for an additional time period, up to 3 months, or 6 months of total service.

Exception: An OPRD MU that wishes to extend a residential volunteer's service beyond the initial manager's extension, the park manager must receive written approval for the extension from the district manager.

Hours

Parks may set hour expectations for volunteer assignments in whatever way works best for their park (daily, weekly, monthly, etc.). Hour commitments are dependent upon the service of a volunteer assignment, and are based on the expected time it would take an individual to complete an assignment. It is unacceptable to have different service hour expectations for the same assignment that change based on whether or not a volunteer is single or a member of a couple.

Parks should note that having too large of hour/day requirements for residential volunteer assignments could impact their volunteer recruitment and ability to retain volunteers. OPRD MUs should use appropriate judgement in setting volunteer schedules and supervising volunteers to ensure the organization does not take advantage of a volunteer's generosity, prevent volunteer burnout, and ensure each OPRD MU maintains volunteer safety as their primary objective when setting schedules and observing volunteer hours.

For volunteer assignments that schedule an individual for more than 30 hours per week, Park Managers need to receive District Manager approval.

Expectations of Residing on Park Property

Residential volunteers are representatives of OPRD, both during their service and while temporarily living on site, and as such they are held to the highest appearance and performance standards. The expectations OPRD has for all volunteers, as well as specific expectations for residential volunteers, are included in the Volunteer Service Agreement: Park Host form, in the code of conduct section.

The Volunteer Service Agreement: Park Host form can be found on OPRIS and in G:\Volunteer Programs.

Mail

Park hosts may forward their personal mail to the park following the instructions and requirements of a park's specific mailing process. It's important to share with volunteers how, when, and where they can pick up their personal mail. Additionally, set the expectation that that mail may not be available as soon as it is received due to office hours, unexpected office closures, or staffing capacity issues. If volunteers have mail they need to receive in a timely manner, encourage them to utilize a PO box in town.

Mail related to a park host's individual businesses may not be sent to the park. If a park host has a personal business, instruct them that they must open a PO box to operate their business from while residing on site.

More information on restriction to volunteer operated businesses while residing in parks can be found in the Volunteer Service Agreement: Park Host form.

Left Behind Items/Lost and Found

If a volunteer park host leaves behind items when they leave a park, or a park receives mail after a park host has left, staff should follow OPS.010.000 Lost and Found Policy.

Residential Guests of Park Hosts & Residential Volunteers

Residential volunteers are responsible for the actions and behavior of their guests. Inappropriate actions and behaviors of a guest that violates OPRD policy and/or rules may result in the guest, as well as the residential volunteer, being banned from OPRD properties. Non-volunteer guests of residential volunteers are permitted to stay on OPRD property when the following criteria is met:

- Non-volunteer guests stay with volunteers on OPRD property for a time period not exceeding 7 days. Guest stays exceeding 7 days must be approved by the park managers in advance of the guest's arrival.
- Non-volunteer guests, age 18 and older, staying for a time period exceeding 7 days, sign a Host Guest Opt Out of Service form, found on OPRIS and in G:\Volunteer Programs, and pass a criminal background check based on the agency requirements in HR.080 Criminal History and Driving Records Checks Policy.
- Non-volunteer guests, age 17 and younger, are permitted with adequate parent/guardian supervision. Children age 9 and younger must be supervised at all times on OPRD property, following the age minimum guidelines in ORS 163.545 Child Neglect in the Second Degree. Additionally, youth guests are not permitted to be in, or reside at, maintenance shop areas or areas around park maintenance equipment.
- If a guest has an additional vehicle, an additional vehicle fee will be charged when applicable.

Extra Vehicle Fee for Guests

Park hosts are State of Oregon volunteers, and as such are held to the same ethical standard as state employees. From the volunteer service agreement, "Volunteers may not use their relationship or volunteer position with OPRD to solicit and receive special benefits, financial gain, loans, gifts of money or property, or use of products such as day-use passes, firewood, park recycling deposits etc. for themselves, family or friends."

Each park is different, and depending on the specific area the guest of a volunteer host parks their vehicle, it may not incur an extra vehicle fee. However, if the guest is parks in a day-use fee site that requires a pass, or the addition of that guest's vehicle to the park host's camp site requires an additional vehicle fee, the guest will need to pay the fee. This ensures that the park host is not using their volunteer position with OPRD to obtain financial benefits that are not available to other park uses, and that the park host and OPRD is in compliance with the State of Oregon's ethics policy.

It can be helpful, in this instance, to think if the volunteer were an employee and had a guest visiting for lunch or staying in the campsite, the employee's guests would be charged a fee when applicable; the same is then true for a volunteer in a similar situation.

Confirming and Preparing Park Hosts for Service

For more information about establishing an interview and selection process see pages 35 & 36.

Confirmation of Assignment

After a park host candidate has been selected, it's important to get confirmation from them, in writing, accepting this assignment. One example may be to send a confirmation letter to them by email, and ask for a response by a certain date. An example confirmation letter can be found in G:\Volunteer Programs.

Communication Leading up to Start Date

Communication leading up to a park host's arrival is also important. It is suggested that after confirming an assignment initially, staff send additional informational emails 3 months and 1 month prior to an assignment start date. Email templates for these emails can be found in G:\Volunteer Programs.

Supplies

Find a park supply order form on OPRIS and in R:\Volunteer Services. More information on ordering volunteer uniform supplies on page 32.

Prior to a volunteer's arrival, ideally 3 months before, identify if the incoming hosts needs any uniform or supply items. A supply order form, designed for volunteers to complete and send back to staff, can be found in G:\Volunteer Programs.

Order items for hosts 2 months in advance of their arrival. Please do not place orders for name tags or signs further out that 2-3 months. If after accepting an assignment at your park, the host schedules an assignment at another park before service at your MU, we will need to ship items again so the volunteer will have them for their 'new' first assignment.

Documentation & Reporting Requirements

OPRD staff are required to document the following parts of service for residential volunteers:

- Individual volunteer park host profile in OPRIS (Application).
- Volunteer Service Agreement: Park Host, uploaded and documented in OPRIS.

Annual Park Host Registration

Every January, statewide and regional staff coordinate annual registration for park hosts. Annual registration is designed to help park staff by cutting down the amount of time spent on statewide annual volunteer requirements. Registration is announced in early December, park hosts may register between January 1 - 31, and host profiles are updated by March 1 each year.

What's Included in Annual Park Host Registration?

Park hosts that participate will complete:

- Application renewal & volunteer contact information update.
- Volunteer Service Agreement: Park Host.
- Statewide required safety training.
- Statewide discrimination and harassment training.
- Annual criminal background check & driving records check (that is expired or will be expired before September of that year).

Park hosts that participate will receive:

- Annual En Route Pass/Special Access Pass in January of that year.
- Additional support in registration process from statewide and regional staff.

What Staff Need to do to Participate

- By December 1, have hosts scheduled in OPRIS for the following year.
Only hosts who have been scheduled in OPRIS for the following year will be invited to participate in annual registration.
- Encourage scheduled hosts to participate in annual registration.

Individual Volunteers / Long-Term Volunteer

Individual volunteer refers to a volunteer who agrees to fulfill a certain day or hour requirement of service over an extended, specified period of time. This time period extends beyond a one-day service task. They do not temporarily reside on OPRD property.

Requirements for Individual Volunteers

Requirements will be dependent upon the volunteer assignment, and determined by an individual MU or division. There are additional restrictions on youth volunteers serving in this role; see page 15 for more information.

To see what on-boarding forms and trainings are required for this volunteer assignment, go to the Volunteer Assignment Requirements Matrix on appendix page 60.

Safety Training

Individual volunteers are not required to take the same safety training as park hosts. However, a manager may make any of these safety modules available to an individual volunteer, and require its review to be a part of that volunteer assignment if they determine it's necessary.

All individual volunteers are required to receive on-site training related to the specific assignment duties and location they where they are volunteering.

Go to pages 27 & 46 for specific information on safety training.

Discrimination and Harassment Training

The State of Oregon's Discrimination and Harassment Free Workplace training is required for all park hosts, residential volunteers, and those in individual on-going volunteer assignments. This training is no longer available for volunteers on iLearn.gov.

Direct volunteers to complete their statewide discrimination and harassment training online here:

<https://sites.google.com/view/oprddiscriminationharassmenttr/home>

This training, when completed online, will be updated on a volunteer's OPRIS profile by volunteer programs staff on a weekly basis.

Information Security Training Foundations

Oregon requires all staff and some volunteers to take Information Security Training: Foundations. OPRD has a formal exception that waives this requirement for volunteers as long as the following activities and responsibilities are not a part of their service:

- Use of an Oregon.gov email address.
- Use of a personally assigned OPRD mobile device or laptop.
- Volunteer work directs individual to use an OPRD computer or device with access to servers and/or access other sensitive databases.
- Use of a key, or keycard access to OPRD buildings with sensitive files.
- Access to confidential contract and/or personal information on vendors, contractors, volunteers, visitors, staff, and/or any partners of OPRD.

If a volunteer will be serving in a role where one or more of those activities will be a part of service, they will need to complete Security Training: Foundations on iLearn.gov prior to their service start date. This training is required annually. If you need assistance in giving a volunteer access to this training on iLearn.gov, contact the statewide volunteer programs coordinator.

Length of Service

All volunteer assignments must have a schedule that identifies the term of service, which includes a start and end date. Although the volunteer service is scheduled for a specific term, the volunteer service leader may renew the terms of the volunteer agreement as often as they would like, as there is not a maximum amount of hours or years an Individual Volunteer may commit to a certain project or location.

Exception: Volunteers that are appointed to a commission or advisory board are subject to term limits.

Schedule

OPRD MUs or divisions must set a standard schedule for a specific assignment, or mutually agree upon a schedule with an individual volunteer. This must be documented in writing, in either the volunteer assignment description or another document. Volunteers are able to engage in an assignment where they are on-call, but the on-call hours must be scheduled, so it is clear when a volunteer is actively in service.

Schedule Examples:

- Service Term: May 20, 2021 – September 15, 2021. Volunteer Shifts are approximately four hours, and are scheduled with assignment supervisor at least one-week in advance. Volunteer hours occur between the hours of 6:00 am—6:00 pm.
- Service Term: April 1, 2021 – April 1, 2022. Volunteer shift is 10:00 am – 12:00 pm, the first and third Sunday of each month.
- Service Term: January 1, 2021 – December 31, 2021. Volunteer service is scheduled with assignment supervisor in advance and meeting schedule and work is included in the Volunteer Assignment Description.

Hours:

OPRD MUs or divisions may set hour expectations for volunteer assignments in whatever way works best for their park or division (daily, weekly, monthly, etc.). Hour commitments are dependent upon the service of a volunteer assignment and are based on the expected time it would take an individual to complete an assignment.

For volunteer assignments that schedule an individual for more than 30 hours per week, Park Managers need to receive District Manager approval.

Expectations of Service

Volunteers are representatives of OPRD during their service, and as such they are held to the highest appearance and performance standards. The expectations OPRD has for all volunteers are included in the Volunteer Service Agreement: Individual Volunteer form, in the code of conduct section.

The Volunteer Service Agreement: Individual Volunteer form can be found on OPRIS and in G:\Volunteer Programs.

Documentation & Reporting Requirements

OPRD staff are required to document the following parts of service for Individual volunteers:

- Individual volunteer profile in OPRIS.
- Volunteer Service Agreement: Individual Volunteer, uploaded and documented in OPRIS.
- Volunteer assignment description and schedule, uploaded and documented in OPRIS.
- Date of criminal background checks and driving record checks documented in OPRIS.

Youth Volunteers

Youth volunteers include anyone engaged in service with any OPRD unit, age 17 years or younger. OPRD, as a state agency, is directed to follow OAR 839-021-0006 to 839-021-0500 Rules Regulating the Employment of Minors in Oregon when engaging in volunteer service with minors. There are a lot of requirements for working with minors that all vary based on their age and the location/environment of their volunteer service. Please use the information below as a general guide. If you have specific questions about engaging in service with youth, please contact the region program coordinator or the statewide volunteer programs coordinator, who can give you more guidance on any proposed youth volunteer service assignment.

OPRD Staff Guidelines for Youth Volunteers

When working with youth, it is recommended that whenever possible, a parent or guardian be the one to supervise the volunteer during service. If this is not possible, then an OPRD staff member may take on the supervisory role.

When OPRD staff are working with youth, staff should take additional precautions that make the minor's safety a top priority. Additional steps should be taken so staff are never alone with the minor by remaining in public places where other staff or public are present, and to never be alone, behind a closed door with a minor.

Youth volunteers are to be supervised at all times, therefore a parent/guardian must supervise their work or OPRD staff must be engaged and present with them during service. For identifying if supervision is adequate, a good guideline is if the minor were to shout out for help, the OPRD staff member or parent/guardian should be close enough to them to hear it and respond immediately.

Volunteer Requirements for Youth Volunteers

- Volunteers who have not reached the age of 18 years old must have the written consent of a parent or legal guardian prior to volunteering, which is obtained as part of the Volunteer Service Agreement: Individual Volunteer form found on OPRIS and in G:\Volunteer Programs.
- Youth volunteers must be supervised by a parent, guardian, OPRD manager approved adult, or OPRD staff member during the performance of volunteer service.
- Youth ages 14 years to 17 years may volunteer for individual volunteer assignments.
- Additional restrictions are in place for youth 14-15 years, contact statewide volunteer programs coordinator for guidance.
- Youth age 13 years and under may only volunteer for one-time opportunities and special events, with OPRD MU or division manager approval, when a parent or guardian is volunteering for the same assignment, and a parent, guardian, or OPRD manager approved adult will provide constant, direct supervision.
- Volunteers under the age of 18 years are not permitted to volunteer in any role that has been classified as a subject worker, including park host, and are ineligible for worker's compensation.

Youth Group Requirements

Formal Youth Groups: Schools, Non-Profits, Scout Groups, etc.

Formal youth groups, such as scout programs and school groups, are encouraged to provide their own medical and tort liability insurance that meets OPRD and DAS required minimums, provide supervision of youth during service, and obtain and be responsible for parent/guardian permission for all youth volunteers participating in service.

Youth groups that can provide their own medical and tort liability insurance will have their leaders sign the Volunteer Service Agreement: Schools & Non-Profit Youth Groups form, found on OPRIS and in G:\Volunteer Programs, which confirms that the groups meet the liability and insurance minimums, and that the group is responsible for supervision and permission for all youth participants. When the School & Non-Profit Group Agreement Form is signed, OPRD staff are not required to collect additional Volunteer Service Agreement: Individual Volunteer forms for each individual group participant.

If a formal youth group is unable to provide the required liability coverage amounts, the group will be processed as episodic or individual volunteers (depending upon the volunteer assignment), and each youth participant will need a parent or guardian completed Volunteer Service Agreement: Individual Volunteer form. All these forms will need to be uploaded to the group's OPRIS profile.

Informal Youth Groups

Informal youth groups include community groups that are not a formal non-profit or do not have general liability insurance for their participants.

Informal youth groups will be processed as a general group, and each youth participant will need a parent or guardian completed Volunteer Service Agreement: Individual Volunteer form. All these forms will need to be uploaded to the group's OPRIS profile.

Length of Service

In general, follow the guidelines for hours and dates of service for the Individual Volunteer or Episodic Volunteer positions. In addition to those parameters, there are additional hour requirements for youth volunteer schedules that are dependent upon a volunteer's age:

Volunteers Age 16-17 years: Cannot exceed 44 service hours per week.

Volunteer Age 15 years and Younger: Service hours must be scheduled outside of school hours, and only between the hours of 7:00 am – 7:00 pm (may be extended to 9:00 pm June 1 – Labor Day). When school is not in session, no more than 40 service hours per week, and no more than 8 hours in one day. When school is in session, no more than 18 service hours per week, or 3 hours in one day.

Expectations of Service

The same standards and expectations of service that apply to adult volunteers, apply to youth volunteers as well. Although a parent or guardian will sign the appropriate volunteer service agreement for their child, it is important to review expectations of service with both the parent/guardian and the minor at the same time.

Episodic Volunteers

An episodic volunteer is an individual who provides service for a specific event or task and makes a commitment for a one-time event. Examples include a volunteer who provides service for a one-day beach clean-up, community outreach event, or trail work party.

Group volunteers not involved in an Adopt-A-Park Agreement, are considered episodic volunteers, and will follow the same expectations, schedule, and assignment requirements as below. In some cases, Adopt-A-Park partners may use the Volunteer Service Agreement: Episodic Volunteers for their group's service day projects.

Volunteer Requirements for Episodic Volunteers

Requirements will be dependent upon the volunteer assignment, and determined by an individual OPRD MU or division. There are additional restrictions on youth volunteers serving in this role; see page 15 for more information.

To see what on-boarding forms and trainings are required for this volunteer assignment, go to the Volunteer Assignment Requirements Matrix on appendix page 60.

Length of Service

Episodic volunteer assignments are for a specific, identified time period, and occur on one specific day. As such, the schedule for an episodic volunteer must be clearly identified in the Volunteer Service Agreement: Episodic Volunteer form.

If the assignment is more than one day, use multiple Volunteer Service Agreement: Episodic Volunteer forms, or consider reclassifying this volunteer role as an Individual Volunteer assignment.

Example Schedule:

- Saturday, July 6, 2019, 10:00 am – 3:30 pm.

Expectations of Service

Volunteers are representatives of OPRD during their service, and as such they are held to the highest appearance and performance standards. The expectations OPRD has for all volunteers are included in the Volunteer Service Agreement: Episodic Volunteer Form, in the code of conduct section.

The Volunteer Service Agreement: Episodic Volunteer Form can be on OPRIS and in G:\Volunteer Programs.

Documentation & Reporting Requirements

OPRD staff are required to document the following parts of service for Episodic Volunteers:

- Volunteer profile in OPRIS:
 - Special event volunteer profile in OPRIS

Internship and Service Learning Volunteers

Volunteer internships with OPRD are a volunteer assignment that is a form of experiential learning that integrates knowledge and theory learned in the classroom with practical application and skills development in a professional setting.

Volunteer interns and service learners are ineligible for volunteer injury coverage, and as such have a different volunteer service agreement they need to complete. See the section on volunteer service agreements on page 38 for more information.

Volunteer Requirements Volunteer Internships and Service Learners

- Volunteer service learners or interns must receive academic credit for their service or be currently enrolled in an academic or internship program (such as optional practical training).
- The volunteer assignment's primary purpose is to support the learning and experience of the intern or service learner, rather than primarily meeting the needs of the park or division.
- There is no promise of future employment.
- There is no payment or stipend received.

If all of the requirements above cannot be met, consider if this role would be better classified as an individual volunteer rather than as a volunteer internship.

To see what on-boarding forms and trainings are required for this volunteer assignment, go to the Volunteer Assignment Requirements Matrix, in the appendix on page 60.

Discrimination and Harassment Training

The State of Oregon's Discrimination and Harassment Free Workplace training is required for all park hosts, residential volunteers, and those in individual on-going volunteer assignments. This training is no longer available for volunteers on iLearn.gov. Direct volunteers to complete their statewide discrimination and harassment training online here:

<https://sites.google.com/view/oprddiscriminationharassmenttr/home>

This training, when completed online, will be updated on a volunteer's OPRIS profile by volunteer programs staff on a weekly basis.

Information Security Training Foundations

Oregon's requires all staff and some volunteers to take Information Security Training: Foundations. OPRD has a formal exception that waives this requirement for volunteers as long as the following activities and responsibilities are not a part of their service:

- Use of an Oregon.gov email address.
- Use of a personally assigned OPRD mobile device or laptop.
- Volunteer work directs individual to use an OPRD computer or device with access to servers and/or access other sensitive databases.
- Use of a key, or keycard access to OPRD buildings with sensitive files.

- Access to confidential contract and/or personal information on vendors, contractors, volunteers, visitors, staff, and/or any partners of OPRD.

If a volunteer will be serving in a role where one or more of those activities will be a part of service, they will need to complete Security Training: Foundations on iLearn.gov prior to their service start date. This training is required annually. If you need assistance in giving a volunteer access to this training on iLearn.gov, contact the statewide volunteer programs coordinator.

Expectations of Service

Volunteers, including interns and service learners, are representatives of OPRD during their service, and as such they are held to the highest appearance and performance standards. The expectations OPRD has for all volunteers are included in the Volunteer Service Agreement: Internship and Service Learner form, in the code of conduct section.

The Volunteer Service Agreement: Internship and Service Learner form can be found on OPRIS and in G:\Volunteer Programs.

Documentation & Reporting Requirements

OPRD staff are required to document the following parts of service for Internship or Service Learning Volunteers:

- Individual, non-host volunteer profile in OPRIS.
- Volunteer Service Agreement: Internship and Service Learner, uploaded and documented in OPRIS.
- Volunteer service hours in OPRIS.

Volunteer Group Agreements

For a quick comparison of the different types of volunteer group agreements for groups, see appendix page 61.

Cooperative Associations (Official Friends Groups)

This section only discusses volunteer program involvement within cooperative association agreements. All questions about agreements and other areas of friends groups partnerships should be directed to the district and/or region manager.

OPRD's partnerships with cooperative associations, commonly called friends groups, are to follow ORS 390.141 Agreements between State Parks and Recreation Department and private organizations. In the ORS, it allows OPRD to enter into an agreement with cooperative associations, and allows the cooperative association to use staff or volunteers to fulfill the provisions within the agreement.

An agreement is made between the board of the friends group/cooperative association and the park manager. A park manager should check in with their district and region manager for their specific authority in recurring friend's group agreements (region manager is required for initial or new friends group agreements). The board of directors of a friends group is a separate entity from OPRD, and the role of board member is not a volunteer assignment of OPRD. Individuals, when acting in the role of board member, serve as a volunteer of the cooperative association.

Requirements of Volunteer Programs included in Cooperative Association Agreements:

- Volunteer programs and/or support of volunteer programs must be defined in the Cooperative Association Annual Plan.
- To determine liability, volunteer programs must be defined as OPRD or cooperative association programs in the annual plan (all OPRD defined volunteers and volunteer programs must follow VOL.010 Volunteer Management Policy).
- Volunteer program support must be documented by cooperative associations in the annual report.

Defining OPRD or Friends Group Programs: Why That Matters

All volunteer programs, as part of the agreement, must be identified as either OPRD programs or cooperative association programs. This is to determine which organization is liable for the program, including staff, volunteers, and program participants.

OPRD Programs: Programs are managed by an OPRD staff member. Volunteers in this program are OPRD volunteers and must follow VOL.010 Volunteer Management Policy. Cooperative associations may support OPRD volunteer programs, with friends group staff or volunteers, by supporting volunteer recruitment, general program administration, or an alternative method of assistance. The support provided by a cooperative association must be specified in the agreement.

Cooperative Association Programs: Programs are managed by a cooperative association member. A cooperative association is a separate non-profit group. Some of the activities the cooperative association engages in may not align with OPRD goals, or be permitted in State or OPRD policy. These programs could fall outside of cooperative association agreements, are considered cooperative association programs. If the program was identified in the cooperative association agreement, as being a cooperative association program, the friends group is responsible to adhere to the requirements, objectives, and goals within the agreement. However, the management of volunteers for cooperative association led programs is only subject to the policies and procedures of the friends group.

Example, OPRD Program

A once a month community event is put on in partnership by a friends group and a state park. Although the program is a partnership, and friends group staff are heavily involved in recruitment and coordination of the volunteers and event activities, it is ultimately considered an OPRD program, because it was defined as such in the Cooperative Association Annual Plan. As an OPRD program, all volunteers for this event are considered OPRD volunteers, and as such the volunteers will be covered under the state of Oregon's tort liability and Volunteer Injury Coverage (as long as volunteers sign an episodic volunteer agreement for the event).

Example, Cooperative Association Program

An afterschool youth program, coordinated by a friends group, includes the state park as one of its field trip destinations. The friends group will coordinate the field trip visit with OPRD staff and the afterschool program is entirely coordinated by the friends group. A commitment for OPRD staff presenters is included in the Annual Plan between the state park and the friends group. Volunteers supporting this program would be considered friends group volunteers, and would not be covered under tort liability and Volunteer Injury Coverage. In this case, the friends group would be advised to have their own volunteer and program tort, injury, and insurance coverage.

Documentation & Reporting Requirements

OPRD staff are required to document the following parts of volunteer service, related to cooperative association agreements:

- Included in the Annual plan, all volunteer programs, events, or volunteer program support that a friends group will be participating in during that time period.
- Upload annual plan to OPRIS friends group profile.
- Annual Report, for Volunteer Programs includes: summary of volunteer service, at minimum total volunteer hours and volunteers.
- Appropriate volunteer service agreement based on the types of volunteers utilized to fulfill the Annual Plan uploaded to OPRIS group profile (unless alternative volunteer record keeping and paperwork documentation has been agreed to as part of the Annual Plan or Five Year Agreement).

Forms & Help Guides

Cooperative association partnerships include more programs and considerations than just volunteer programs. There are financial considerations and other units that are involved in these partnerships. For any questions on the larger friends group program, or to meet the full requirements, beyond the volunteer program requirements, consult your district and/or region manager.

Adopt-A-Park

As defined in ORS 390.139 Oregon Adopt-a-Park Program, the Adopt-A-Park program is a volunteer program administered by OPRD, designed to allow volunteers to assist in the operation and maintenance of Oregon's state parks.

Adopt-A-Park Agreements are made by a manager at the Management Unit, district, region, or statewide level.

Who can enter into an Adopt-A-Park Agreement?

An individual, a group of individuals, a volunteer group or service club, a corporate or business group, and/or any entity that is tax exempt under section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code, may enter into an Adopt-A-Park Agreement with Oregon State Parks.

Agreement Designees: In the agreement, OPRD will identify a manager, at the level the agreement is made (MU, district, region, or statewide), who will be the OPRD agreement designee. The OPRD designee is responsible for managing and writing the agreement, and is the main point of contact for the Adopt-A-Park Group. The Adopter will also have an agreement designee, who will be the main point of contact for OPRD, and will manage and fulfill the obligations of the agreement, and enter into the agreement on behalf of the group.

What can Adopt-A-Park Agreements Include?

Adopter groups, may volunteer to support a certain park, trail, habitat area, structure, entire management unit, or another specific site within OPRD.

Adopters may financially support a service that has been defined in an agreement through buying materials or donating money.

OPRD may purchase materials and supplies that support the volunteer service as defined in the agreement, but outside of reimbursements, OPRD may not donate or give money to the adopter in exchange for any of the volunteer service within the agreement.

Requirements of the Adopt-A-Park Program:

- Adopt-A-Park Agreements are made for one-year terms (this time period is defined in ORS, and as such, agreements may not extend beyond 1 year. A new agreement must be made annually).
- Adopt-A-Park groups must host a minimum of two days of service annually as part of their agreement.
- Groups must follow all policies and procedures related to youth volunteers when engaging individuals under 18 years in volunteer service.

Signs for Adopt-a-Park Partners

As stated in the ORS, OPRD has created a recognition program for Adopt-A-Park groups. Adopt-A-Park park signs are subject to the sign program, a part of the Communications Division, and are to be ordered through this website: <https://stores.pagedna.com/oregon-parks-rec/index.cgi>.

Adopt-A-Park groups should have completed a minimum of 1 year of service as specified in their agreement, and have signed an agreement for a 2nd year before parks order a sign for an adopter group. Exceptions to this are made at the discretion of park management.

Documentation & Reporting Requirements

OPRD staff are required to document the following parts of service for Adopt-A-Park partnerships:

- Adopt-A-Park Profile in OPRIS.
- Adopt-A-Park Agreement.
Completed annually, managed and written by the OPRD designee and adopter designee. Uploading completed agreement to OPRIS profile. (Use +Add Agreement on OPRIS Adopt-A-Park Profiles).
- Attachment(s) of Adopt-A-Park Service Activities:
To be completed by a park manager with adopter designee. Multiple attachments may be needed if the agreement is at a district, region, or statewide level, and multiple management units are included; one attachment per management unit.
- Volunteer Service Agreement (individual or episodic), uploaded to OPRIS.

Forms & Help Guides

- Comparison: Adopt-A-Park, General Group, and Contracting, appendix page 61.

General Groups

General volunteer groups, which may include community, corporate, non-formal youth groups, that arrange a special project or day of service with a park are considered Episodic Volunteers. There is no longer a specific Group Volunteer Service Agreement Form. Now, depending upon the service, a management unit or division may choose to create a group volunteer profile for them instead of special event profile.

See the Episodic Volunteer section on page 17 to review forms, requirements, help guides for general group volunteers.

Other Agreement Options: Contracting

Contract Options for Volunteer Agreements

There are a few different options available to parks when an Adopt-A-Park or cooperative association agreement does not meet a situation's volunteer service needs.

When entering into the OPRD procurement process for volunteer service activities, volunteer groups will be defined as contractors, and will not be considered direct OPRD volunteers.

If a MU, district, or statewide agreement outside of contracting is to be pursued, staff should consult their upline management to determine what possible agreement structures can be pursued.

Special Contract Agreements:

Consult OPRD Procurement section to pursue either of the specific contracts below:

- Youth Job Development Organizations, ORS 344.415-425
- Other Public Agencies, ORS 190.110

OPRD Contracts and Procurements:

- Small Procurements
- Intermediate Procurements
- Competitive Sealed Bidding

If an OPRD MU or division wishes to enter into a separate MOU, memorandum of understanding, with a group regarding volunteer service, an agreement that may include sponsorship or payment for volunteer service, MUs or divisions are to follow the policies, procedures, and guidelines for contracting and procurement as identified by OPRD Procurements section.

Forms & Help Guides

- Contact the OPRD Procurements section with any questions about this process and/or its requirements.

Appropriate Volunteer Service

Augmenting OPRD Staff Duties

Volunteer assignments may include tasks that augment duties performed by paid staff. Volunteer tasks may not exclusively replace tasks normally assigned to paid staff.

Augmenting staff duties is demonstrated in an OPRD MU's or division's ability to absorb a portion of volunteer tasks or temporarily stop providing non-essential tasks whenever volunteers are unavailable to complete those tasks.

Example, Augmenting Staff Duties: Volunteer assignment has volunteers support campground operations, which includes mowing grass. With volunteer support mowing is done weekly. When volunteers are present, staff are able to focus on additional services. When volunteers are not serving in the role, mowing is done by staff on a bi-weekly or monthly basis. In this example, volunteer service for this task allows the park to meet a higher level of service and expectation than it would with staff alone. If volunteers were not there, the task would go undone, or not done at the same service level.

Example, Replacing Staff Duties: Volunteer assignment has volunteers exclusively checking-in campers to their sites. Checking-in campers to sites is not a part of current ranger duties, and rangers do not perform this task. When volunteers are not available, ranger staff have to take over the responsibilities as they were being performed, because the task is crucial to the park. In this example, the task that's included in this volunteer assignment was given completely to volunteers, and it was no longer an activity that staff were trained on or considered responsible to do. Because it is critical to park operations, when no volunteers are available, staff must take on the role again. This is an example replacing staff duties, rather than having volunteers support key tasks, which is not allowed.

Volunteer Role in Enforcement

Volunteers are neither expected nor empowered to enforce OPRD park rules. Subject to PSP.040 Park Area Rule Enforcement Policy, volunteers may advise, or educate the public on park rules, but may not engage in rule compliance. Prohibited enforcement activities include, but are not limited to: issuing compliance requests verbally or in writing and issuing violation notices.

Enforcement is strictly the responsibility of commissioned park staff. Volunteers do not receive the same training, resources, or protections that enforcement staff receive. We cannot predict the reaction or behavior of a guest that has been given a written warning or asked for compliance, and an enforcement contact that seems to be relatively benign, can quickly turn into a more serious situation. Volunteers are not paid staff and are not to be put into greater risk by having enforcement as part of their role. As such, they can educate and inform on park rules only.

Examples:

- Allowed: Volunteer park host at a day-use park is given a stack of flyers that list the park hours, and the time the gate will be locked. Volunteer is instructed to put these flyers on all cars in the lot 4 hours prior to close. This falls under informing, it's not a citation document, and does not threaten further fines or actions, or what happens if someone is out of compliance.
- Not Allowed: Volunteer park host is assigned to stand on a bike path and ask each child or parent of a child to wear a helmet or they may receive a citation and fine. This is not only asking for compliance, but it's putting the volunteer in the position as a first contact in an enforcement situation. This goes beyond informing the rules, as the host is seeking out visitors not in compliance, and this is not general information sharing.

Volunteer Roles in Cash Handling

Volunteers who are given duties related to cash handling are subject to the same cash handling controls, procedure, and training as OPRD employees. For details on cash handling controls, refer to the RRAP Manual.

Unless an exception has obtained an exception from the Accounting Department, volunteers may not:

- Reconcile daily receipts.
- Prepare bank deposits or revenue forms.
- Deliver deposits to the bank.
- Access the reservations system.
- Perform any type of cash handling in park booths.
- Be considered dual custody when preparing deposits.
- Be given access to a safe.

Volunteers may:

- Use a change fund to facilitate gift shop or amenity sales such as firewood or ice, as long as a specific amount has been approved by the OPRD MU Manager and a Change Fund Transfer Form has been completed.
- Claim bottle/recycling deposits for the park.

Forms & Resources

- RRAP Manual.

Safety: Approved Volunteer Tasks

Volunteer tasks, identified as low hazard or moderate hazard in the SAF.010.080.PR Volunteers and Safety Sensitive Tasks Procedure, may be included in volunteer assignment descriptions. Tasks identified as high hazard are prohibited from being a part of a volunteer assignment managed by OPRD MUs or divisions.

Exceptions allow for an OPRD unit to identify an individual volunteer to engage in high hazard tasks on a case-by-case basis. These exceptions are made for individuals, and not made for general volunteer assignments. The exceptions process must follow the procedure outlined in the SAF.010.080.PR Volunteers and Safety Sensitive Tasks Procedure, which includes obtaining district manager approval.

Evaluating Tasks for Safety

Staff should think about the tasks and the level of risk being assigned to volunteers. It may be helpful to answer the following questions to help identify what appropriate training may be for a specific activity, or if an activity may not be suited for volunteer service:

1. What safety training is required or provided to staff who take on this task or activity? Is it possible to provide the same level of training to a volunteer?

2. How are staff supervised while performing this activity? How could volunteers receive the same level of supervision?

If staff have questions about appropriate tasks or training associated with them, contact OPRD's Safety Program Manager.

Forms & Resources

- SAF.010.080.PR Volunteers and Safety Sensitive Tasks Procedure, in the Safety and Risk Resource Manual, found on OPRIS under Forms/Resources Safety and Risk.

Equipment Use by Volunteers

Volunteers may use state property in the performance of their volunteer assignment with permission and instruction from their OPRD MU or division. Volunteers are not permitted to use state property for personal use, unless explicitly given permission by management.

OPRD MU or division managers may give permission for volunteers to use their own personal equipment during volunteer service when the equipment has been approved by the manager and the volunteers have signed a volunteer service agreement and/or Adopt-a-Park Agreement.

Equipment Checkout Form can be found in R:\Volunteer Services. Use this form is volunteers will be given park property to use for the duration of their service that they will need to return: keys, tools, etc.

Driving Vehicles as Part of Volunteer Service

Volunteers may only operate utility vehicles and/or vehicles that require a Class C license as part of their volunteer assignment.

To operate State vehicles or utility vehicles as part of volunteer service, volunteers must:

- Possess a valid driver license.
- Be 18 years of age or older.
- Have a valid and approved driving record check on file.
- Have a valid Volunteer Service Agreement on file.
- Complete all required safety training for vehicle use.

A specific training module on Utility Vehicles is included a part of the required safety training for host assignments. Review this specific safety module here: R:\Volunteer Services\Safety & Harassment\Safety Host Training

To operate a volunteer's personal vehicle as part of volunteer service:

- All the volunteer requirements for operating state vehicles must be met.
- OPRD MUs and divisions must follow the permission requirements in FIN.060.000 Department Travel Policy, including OPRD unit permission for personal vehicle use in advance of driving.

When is Driving a Personal Vehicle Included in Volunteer Service?

The short answer is that it is up to the manager of a management unit or division to determine if driving a personal vehicle should be a part of a volunteer's assigned tasks.

In general, if volunteer service requires the use of a volunteer's personal vehicle, they should be reimbursed for the travel related to volunteer service, and the time spent during travel should be included in their recorded volunteer hours.

If a volunteer's service location is not at the same place where they are residing, OPRD staff need to be clear in identifying when that volunteer's service begins.

Example, Driving is not Included in Volunteer Service:

A park host is assigned a RV site at a park as part of their service. However, they will be volunteering at a lighthouse that is 5 miles from the park. OPRD staff will include, in both the volunteer assignment description and during the interview/selection process, that although a campsite will be assigned for the volunteer while they perform service, volunteer service begins once a volunteer arrives at the volunteer site and ends on site when the scheduled shift ends.

This makes it clear that driving from the campsite assigned to the volunteer and the volunteer site is not included in their recorded volunteer hours, and is not part of volunteer service.

This is similar to a lighthouse volunteer that lives locally in the community. There volunteer service begins and ends when they arrive and leave the volunteer site, and drive time from their place of residence to the volunteer site is not included as part of volunteer service.

Example, Driving is Included in Volunteer Service:

An advisory board volunteer that lives in Bend is required to attend an in-person meeting in Portland annually. Due to the needs of the advisory board to have volunteer representation from an individual from Bend and the additional expense driving burdens this volunteer with, reimbursement will be provided for driving related to this meeting. As reimbursement is provided, driving will be included in volunteer service, and OPRD staff will share that their volunteer hours will include the travel time to and from this meeting.

Personal Use of OPRD Computers and Internet by Volunteers

Volunteer park hosts provide volunteer service over an extended period of time. It is reasonable to expect that in order to recruit and retain volunteers, park host volunteers will need to use OPRD computers and internet for personal use. Reasonable use of OPRD computers and internet is directed by IS.020.000 Acceptable Use of Information Assets Policy.

Use of OPRD Internet by Volunteers

As stated in IS.020.000: “Incidental personal use of OPRD guest wireless is acceptable as allowed under this policy. Personal use of the guest network must be incidental and must not impair OPRD business.”

It’s important that volunteers who use OPRD internet for incidental personal use, use the internet appropriately. It is a state provided resource, and as such the websites volunteers visit, and online programs they utilize with their personal devices, are held to a higher ethical standard and to not be a misuse of resources; the same standard for OPRD employees.

For any use of OPRD networks:

- “Audio and/or video streaming for personal use via the Internet, including radio stations, television shows, videos, or any other content which provides a continuous feed through the Internet is not allowed on OPRD systems.”
- “Use shall not include playing games, whether Internet, personal, or those included with approved software applications. State systems may not be used for hosting or operating personal Web pages or for non-business-related postings to Internet groups, chat rooms, Web pages, or list serves.”

Use of OPRD Computers by Volunteers

If a park has a general computer that is available for staff and volunteer use, volunteers may use the computer during times as specified appropriate by a park and when the computer is not needed for OPRD related work or volunteer assignments. Volunteers will need to utilize a generic volunteer account to sign onto an OPRD computer that hotline may set up for a park. This one account is used by all volunteers anytime they need to log onto the computer. The volunteer guest login limits computer access to volunteers so they will not have access to OPRD drives, OPRIS, or other sensitive files.

In addition to the policy statements on OPRD internet systems use, from IS.020.000, while using OPRD computers or equipment:

- “Non-approved software shall not be downloaded or installed from the Internet or other external sources.”
- “State information systems shall not be used for personal solicitation. For example, systems shall not be used to lobby, solicit, recruit, sell, or persuade for or against commercial ventures, products, religious, political causes or outside organizations.”

Assignment Modifications for Volunteers

Volunteer assignment modifications will be made for volunteers, whenever possible, to allow for inclusive and safe volunteer experiences.

Volunteers serving in any assignment will have their ability to perform assigned tasks assessed by their OPRD MU or division. If a volunteer shows an inability to perform a task safely, the OPRD MU or division may provide further training or modify the task, to support the volunteer in their performance of the assignment.

If modifications cannot be made which allows the volunteer to perform the assignment, the OPRD MU or division may identify more appropriate assignments, or contact their regional program coordinator to identify other available assignment options. If no other opportunities can be identified, and there are no alternative volunteer assignments, the volunteer assignment will be terminated.

Documenting Modifications

Include appropriate information on the notes section of a volunteer's profile that will help future OPRD volunteer assignments support and work with a volunteer.

Do not upload any medical records or include notes about medical records on their volunteer profile.

Example Note: Volunteer Jane has a passion for the Junior Ranger program, however, she cannot stand for long periods of time, and cannot carry equipment that weights over 20 lbs. (approximately). OPRD staff moved locations of Jane's Junior Ranger programs to areas where seating was available, and would have another volunteer or staff member assist her in unloading heavy materials (as needed).

Staff & Family Members of Staff as Volunteers

If a staff member wishes to volunteer for an OPRD volunteer assignment, including seasonal staff during the off-season, their manager should contact their HR business partner to determine if the volunteer service is appropriate.

If a family member of a staff member wishes to volunteer, the staff member's manager needs to verify that the position does not create an ethical conflict in supervision, preferential treatment, or in the creation of an assignment that violates HR.050 Professional Standards Ethics and Conflict of Interest. Managers should contact their HR business partner to discuss potential conflict if they are uncertain on whether or not a family member volunteering creates ethical conflict.

Volunteer Uniforms and Supplies

Uniforms

The volunteer uniform pieces currently offered, and the volunteer roles that are able to wear these uniform pieces are found in the grid below. Additional information on the uniform can be found in the OPRD Uniform Manual.

	Vest	Visor, Solid Cap, Mesh Cap	Aussie Hat	Name Tag	Mesh Neon Vest*
Residential Volunteer/Park Host	Allowed	Allowed	Allowed	Allowed	Allowed
Individual/Long- Term Volunteer	Allowed	Allowed	Not allowed	Allowed	Allowed
Episodic Volunteer	Not allowed	Not allowed	Not allowed	Not allowed	Allowed

*Mesh neon vest is an item that OPRD MUs or divisions may have in a volunteer uniform library, but are not to be purchased to give to volunteers. Mesh neon vests are provided by the MU or division.

Ordering Uniforms

Send volunteer uniform orders using the Volunteer Supply Order Form, found on OPRIS and in R:\Volunteer Services, to the Statewide Volunteer Programs Coordinator: allison.watson@oregon.gov or by fax to 503-986-0794.

Supplies

Additional volunteer supplies, provided by the statewide program, are listed below. These additional supplies are only available to park host volunteers. Additional volunteer supplies may be purchased and supplied by an individual OPRD MU or division.

	Park Host Door Hanger (On Duty/Off Duty)	Host Sign
Park Host	Allowed	Allowed

Ordering Supplies

Send volunteer supply orders using the Volunteer Supply Order Form, found on OPRIS and in R:\Volunteer Services, to the Statewide Volunteer Programs Coordinator: allison.watson@oregon.gov or by fax to 503-986-0794.

Fee Waivers

Individuals or groups providing in-kind services in-lieu of an overnight fee may get the fee waived based on the park manager's discretion. Since group sizes and projects vary widely, the park manager should determine the number of service hours required to equal or exceed the value of fees waived on a case by case basis. Documentation should be kept on how the value was determined. Park managers will need to follow the policy and procedures related to FIN.080.000 Fee Reductions & Waivers Policy to issue a fee waiver to a volunteer.

State Parks Passes

En Route Pass/Host Special Access Pass

OPRD provides park hosts with a digital/printable annual En Route or Host Special Access Pass. This pass serves as a day-use pass at OPRD sites, as well as a waiver for overnight camping during travel to, from, and between volunteer assignments. The Host Special Access pass allows hosts to have:

- One free night when traveling to or from an OPRD park host assignment.
- Two free nights when traveling between OPRD park host assignments.
- Waive fees at OPRD day-use fee sites.

The Host Special Access Pass expires December 31st of the year it was distributed.

Park hosts are eligible to receive the Host Special Access Pass if they serve in any park host assignment for the year the pass expires. Passes may be digitally or manually printed by OPRD staff and either emailed or given directly to a park host or host team.

Creating a Host Special Access Pass

- Staff Instructions, Creating a Host Special Access Pass, found in R:\Volunteer Services.
- Current Year's Host Special Access Pass Template, found in R:\Volunteer Services.
- Host Special Access Pass Confirmation Letter, found in R:\Volunteer Services.

Making Reservations:

To reserve a site using the Host Special Access Pass, hosts may only call in reservations. Reservations cannot be made online. Hosts are to call Info Line, and make a reservation for an overnight stay.

If a host does not call in to make a reservation in advance, they can pay for the site, and then call into Info Line at a later date, to receive a full refund. Info Line: 1-800-551-6949.

Camping reservations, as part of the Host Special Access Pass are of no cost to the volunteer(s). The $8 Reserve America fee is not charged to park hosts for overnight camping.

Review the confirmation letter that is sent to park hosts along with their pass.

Volunteer Recruitment

Non-discrimination

OPRD does not discriminate against volunteers during recruitment for assignments based on race, color, national origin, sex, religion, age, disability, marital status, sexual orientation, gender or any other protected class as defined by state and federal law. Individuals have equal opportunity to apply for any OPRD volunteer assignment, and may not be removed from consideration on the basis of their protected class(es).

Host Teams vs. Individual Hosts:

Specifically, non-discrimination means that unless it is an essential part of the volunteer service, management units cannot exclude single park hosts from being considered for an assignment based on their team status alone. For certain assignments It may be necessary to have a volunteer team instead of a single host: if the host will be serving at a remote location where only one site is available, or if two individuals are needed to meet the safety requirements of performing a task. However, for all assignments where it is not absolutely necessary, the status of a potential volunteer as part of a team or as a solo individual may not be considered in determining fit for the assignment.

Hour commitments are dependent upon the service of a volunteer assignment, and are based on the expected time it would take an individual to complete an assignment. It is unacceptable to have different service hour expectations for the same assignment that change based on whether or not a volunteer is single or a member of a couple.

For Example: if a volunteer assignment supports yurt cleaning, a volunteer should be told to expect to serve 4-6 hours each day cleaning X amount of yurts. The time will vary based on if they have a partner to support their work (either as a member of their host team, or a different host/staff member), their efficiency, as well as how many yurts need cleaning. But at the end of the week, the expectation is that the volunteer accomplishes the tasks they are assigned successfully, and a single host does not have an additional expectation of working more hours just because they do not have a partner.

Recruitment Postings

Recruitment should be specialized for different volunteer assignments. Additional tools and resources will work for different locations across the state and different volunteer roles.

All park host, individual volunteer, and episodic volunteer roles should have recruitments posted on the <https://stateparks.oregon.gov> website. Find instructions on how to post recruitments to this website through OPRIS in G:\Volunteer Programs.

Park Host Urgent Need Recruitment:

Staff can use a listserv email address to announce immediate needs for an upcoming park host assignment they need to fill within the next 60 days. For listserv instructions on format and how to send an email to this list, find document in R:\Volunteer Services.

Additional Resources to consider for local and community Individual and Episodic Volunteers:

- <https://www.volunteermatch.org/>
- United Way - Regional Community Affiliate.
- Nearby colleges, contact their service learning or career centers.
- Press release, contact the OPRD Communications Division for support.
- Nearby corporate groups, large corporations and local banks usually have social giving programs where their staff are encouraged to engage in community service.

If you're having difficulty recruiting for a specific volunteer assignment, reach out to your regional program coordinator, who can help identify any barriers that may be in place and support you in a specialized recruitment process.

Screening Potential Volunteers

Each division or management unit is responsible for screening volunteer candidates to ensure potential volunteers meet the minimum requirements of a volunteer assignment, and that those volunteers understand the expectations and duration of service.

Screening potential applicants is important for all volunteer assignments. Long-term, individual volunteers and residential volunteers/park hosts should be interviewed by staff whenever possible to determine if they meet the needs of the assignment and if a MU or division can meet the needs of the volunteer.

Screening Process for Park Hosts:

The screening process is determined by each individual management unit. Below are some suggestions for how to successfully screen park host applicants and make recruitment a fair and transparent process:

Review OPRIS Volunteer Profile:

Notes

Review this section for notes from other parks, RPC, and statewide staff. If a sensitive note has been included on a volunteer's profile, a flagged notification will appear on this page. OPRD managers, regional program coordinators, and the statewide volunteer programs coordinator have the ability to view sensitive notes, so reach out to one of those staff members if you are unable to review a note on a volunteer profile.

Performance Evaluations

On the biography tab of a volunteer's profile, a performance evaluation section will appear if any have been entered for this volunteer.

References

References are primarily useful when looking for professional or specialized volunteer, such as a board member. When recruiting for other volunteer types, understand that most individuals will only list references that will speak highly of them, or might be a personal connection. However, if there is not enough information gathered from the interview process, or their profile alone, reaching out to references can be a great way to gain a better understanding of the level of service and engagement you can expect from a volunteer.

Learn how to conduct an appropriate reference check and view example questions for references on appendix page 83.

Interview Strategies

For assignments that require special or advanced skills, are only available to a limited number of individuals, or require volunteers to temporarily live on site, the interview is an important part of the recruitment process. It gives staff additional information on potential volunteer candidates to ensure they can fulfill the required qualification of a role as well as to identify who the most qualified candidate may be.

See the OPRD Volunteer Interview Questions Guide, on page 81, for ideas on not only interview questions, but also ideas on how to successfully set up your volunteer interview process.

Suggested Strategies

- Be open about your recruitment process on volunteer position announcements you list on the OPRD website, and ensure that park specialists, current hosts, and park staff also know the process, so they can share the process with interested potential hosts.

For Example, if you reach out and contact interested volunteers every other month, share that with staff. Have staff share this with potential volunteers, collect the contact information from any interested host, and add it to a list or file that you'll refer to when it's time to interview volunteers.

- Treat host teams as two individuals, and interview and place them in assignments accordingly:

Speak with BOTH hosts: It's easier to just speak and communicate with the primary communicator for a potential host team. However, if both members of a host team are looking for an assignment, speak with both to ensure that they will EACH be successful in their individual park host positions.

Selecting Volunteers

It is important to have a formal end to the selection process that lets not only the volunteer who was selected know they secured the assignment, but also informs those not chosen.

Selected Volunteer

After you have determined which volunteer(s) you will be selecting to fulfill a particular volunteer assignment, it is important to inform them, and provide them with the information they need to be successful at this stage of the process.

For park hosts, a written confirmation letter sent by email is appropriate. A confirmation not only share details about the specific assignment, and its start and stop dates, but also park staff contact information, and what a volunteer can expect as far as communication and requirements before they begin their assignment.

Parks may develop their own confirmation email or utilize a template found in G:\Volunteer Programs.

For individual and episodic volunteers, a written confirmation is still important. The confirmation letter may not be as detailed as the one for park hosts, but it should be similar. In addition to the volunteer assignment description, include the date of their volunteer orientation, service dates, staff contact information and what to expect before the volunteer arrives to engage in service.

Volunteer Not Selected for Service

It is important to close the process for all volunteers who were a part of the interview and selection process for an assignment. The notification does not, and should not detail all the reasons the final candidate was selected, or detail all the reasons they were not chosen for the assignment. It should share appreciation for their participation in the interview/selection process, and that a different candidate was chosen. Additionally, the notification could direct the individual to apply for other volunteer assignments with that specific unit or with OPRD in general.

It's suggested that staff deliver this information in writing, email is preferable. Staff may develop their own letter, or utilize an email template found in G:\Volunteer Programs.

Volunteer On-Boarding

On-boarding includes everything that OPRD does to introduce a volunteer to our agency, get them in compliance with our processes and procedures, and get them successfully set up for their specific volunteer assignment after they've been placed.

Checklists & Help Guides

Park Hosts

Volunteer Hosting Schedule Report, OPRIS

Print a report of scheduled park hosts for a park or management unit, and easily verify most of the requirements the volunteer has completed. See instruction on how to access report in the appendix on page 64.

Checklist & Timeline for On-Boarding Park Hosts

A brief overview of required parts of on-boarding, and a general timeline for when they are to be completed for park hosts. Checklist found on appendix page 63.

All Volunteers

Statewide Requirements Guide

Shares required forms, and how often they need to be completed, for the different volunteer assignments; found on appendix page 60.

Paperwork

All volunteer assignments require specific volunteer forms. For all volunteer assignments, regardless of role, the following forms are required:

Volunteer Application (Profile in OPRIS)

Volunteers need to have a profile in OPRIS. This allows OPRD to manage their contact information, record service history, and serves as a record for their paperwork.

Creating a Profile for Volunteer:

- Volunteers (or OPRD staff) submit a completed application to volunteer.oprd@oregon.gov. Staff will create a volunteer profile. Fax to 503-986-0794.
- Region program coordinators or statewide programs coordinator can manually create a volunteer profile in OPRIS during tight timelines.
- For volunteer groups, a separate group profile must be created.

Volunteer Service Agreement (VSA)

The VSA is an agreement between a volunteer and a MU or division, as well as the larger Oregon Parks and Recreation Department. Generic VSA forms have been created for agency use, however, if a new form is needed to specifically address a volunteer assignment, contact the statewide volunteer programs coordinator, who will help create a new form for your MU or division's use.

The following sections are included in all VSAs:

- Volunteer Injury Coverage or Workers Compensation.
- Tort Liability Waiver.
- Code of Conduct for Volunteers with OPRD.

*The following Volunteer Service Agreement forms may be found on OPRIS here:
Intranet/ OPRD/ Forms/Resources/ Volunteers:*

- Volunteer Service Agreement: Residential Volunteer, also found in G:\Volunteer Programs.
- Volunteer Service Agreement: Individual Volunteer, also found in G:\Volunteer Programs.
- Volunteer Service Agreement: Episodic Volunteer, also found in G:\Volunteer Programs.
- Volunteer Service Agreement: Internship & Service Learning, also found in G:\Volunteer Programs.

Liability Coverage, Injury Coverage, and Workers' Compensation for Volunteers

Volunteers must sign a State Volunteer Partial Waiver and Release of Rights before they begin service with any OPRD unit. This waiver is included in the Volunteer Service Agreement forms. The State Volunteer Partial Waiver and Release of Rights aligns state coverage for incidents occurring as part of service based on a volunteer's assignment. Coverage is only active once OPRD units also provide a volunteer assignment description and a schedule in addition to or included within the waiver. The following coverages are included in the waiver, and provided by OPRD:

- Workers' Compensation Coverage is available for volunteers identified as subject workers, including park hosts.
- Tort Liability and Motor Vehicle Liability are available for all volunteers.
- Volunteer Injury Coverage (VIC) is available to all volunteers not classified as subject workers. Students or volunteer interns performing service related to academic programs are excluded from VIC. Injuries occurring while operating an unlicensed vehicle are excluded from VIC as outlined in DAS Volunteer Injury Coverage Procedure 125.7.204.

Volunteer Assignment Description

It's important that no matter the assignment, there is a specific assignment description or list of duties for a volunteer role. This allows both the OPRD MU or division and the volunteer to have a clear understanding of what is expected as part of volunteer service. This schedule is also an important reference for the injury reporting process for volunteers.

Specific Assignment Duties or Activities:

Needs to specifically address the duties the volunteer will be engaging in, and cannot be too broad. For example:

Not Acceptable:

Volunteer will support campground operations.

Acceptable:

Volunteer will:

- Respond to visitor, staff, and volunteer requests in an attentive and respectful manner.
- Assist with campground guest check in and check out.
- Provide excellent customer service for park visitors by giving out accurate information about the park, park activities, and the surrounding areas.
- Provide campground maintenance, including cleaning out fire pits and/or stoves, light landscaping, sweeping, and litter pick up.
- Operate utility vehicles (golf carts, gators, etc.).

Why does this matter?

A volunteer could engage in almost any task under the “not acceptable” example. The goal is to be as clear as possible so both the OPRD unit and the volunteer have the same understanding of what is expected of volunteers. Using the above examples, if the “not acceptable” description was shared with a volunteer, and that individual came from another organization, where volunteers were instructed to ticket campers and do enforcement activities, that volunteer may assume that with OPRD, that would also be a part of their responsibilities. If they are given the acceptable description, enforcement is not included in the list of duties. If an OPRD MU or division wants to be clear about what is not involved in volunteer service, a “restricted activities” section could be added to a volunteer assignment description.

Volunteer Assignment Description Templates:

- Blank volunteer assignment description template, found in G:\Volunteer Programs.
- Park Host Volunteer Assignment Description Templates, found in G:\Volunteer Programs.

Volunteer Schedule:

See the appropriate volunteer assignment sections, which detail more information on volunteer schedules:

- Park host/residential volunteers, page 7.
- Individual/long-term volunteers, page 13.
- Episodic volunteers, page 17.
- Volunteer interns or service learners, page 19.

Required Qualifications for Assignments:

Volunteers need to have information on what the baseline requirements are for a volunteer position. These requirements may be related to experience, age, and ability. However, it is important to only list the absolute minimum that is required for an assignment.

Example of a required qualifications section for a campground host assignment:

- Be at least 18 years old.
- Ability to lift up to 20 lbs.
- Ability to travel on uneven terrain, as well as be stationary for long periods of time.
- Ability and willingness to work outside in a variety of environmental conditions.
- Temporarily reside in an assigned OPRD volunteer campsite for the duration of the assignment.

These are not the statewide requirements for the campground host position, it is only an example. Depending on the tasks included in a park's campground host assignment, certain requirements, like the ability to lift X weight, may differ.

The above list of requirements avoids words like walk or stand, because those specific activities aren't actually required for this assignment. By using the words travel and stationary, this provides more inclusive language that allows volunteers, who may not have the ability to walk or stand understand what the true requirements of the position may be, and determine if they can meet those baseline requirements.

Background Checks

Volunteer assignments requiring a criminal background check or driving records check must have a valid, approved records check before beginning service with OPRD.

It is the responsibility of the OPRD MU or division to administer criminal background and driving records checks for volunteer assignments under its purview.

When do DMV and Criminal Background Checks Expire?

Criminal background and driving records checks for volunteers will expire one year from the date which it was completed, and must be updated annually for volunteer service to continue.

Criminal Background Checks, Volunteer Requirements

A criminal background check is required for volunteer assignments, if any of the following apply:

- Interaction with vulnerable populations (children, the elderly, people with disabilities, etc.) is possible during volunteer service which is performed without direct OPRD staff oversight. Direct staff oversight involves having staff on-site, in the vicinity of the volunteer and engaged with the volunteer during service;
- Access to sensitive information and/or assets (keys, cash handling, financial information, client data, etc.) is part of volunteer service; or
- Programmatic decision making on behalf of OPRD is a part of volunteer service.

Examples of volunteer assignments where a criminal background check is not needed:

- A volunteer providing support for a nature craft table at a park event. Park staff are present at the event, on site, and check-in with the individual throughout their service.

- A volunteer supporting a trail work party, where volunteers are spread out over a couple hundred yards. Due to the nature of the trail, visual contact is not always possible between staff and each volunteer. However, staff are present and in the area where the trail work is being performed, and check in with the volunteer during service.

Examples of volunteer assignments where a criminal background check is needed:

- A volunteer who pulls invasive plants for a park on a consistent basis. They check in with staff in the office upon arrival and departure, but are out on location in the park, away from staff, for the duration of service.
- A volunteer who is working on a special project, in an office where OPRD staff are present, which utilizes a computer that gives them access to an OPRD drive or OPRIS.

Driving Records Check, Volunteer Requirements

A driving records check is required for volunteer assignments, if any of the following apply:

- Driving a state vehicle is part of volunteer service;
- Driving an OPRD low speed vehicle (All-Terrain Vehicle (ATV), golf cart, gator, utility vehicle, etc.) is part of volunteer service; or
- The OPRD unit manager identifies the volunteer's assignment necessitates use of the volunteer's personal vehicle, in fulfillment of travel which is directly related to volunteer service.

Documentation & Reporting Requirements

Criminal Background and Driving Record Checks Passed:

Upon receipt of an approved background check notification, which is sent by email to the OPRD staff member who initiated the original request, the OPRIS profile of the volunteer is to be updated with the date they passed the background and driving records check.

Driving Records Check Failed:

If a volunteer fails the driving records check, human resources will notify the OPRD staff who submitted the original request, along with the region programs coordinator to discuss if the volunteer may be approved for modified service without driving.

Background Check Failed:

When a volunteer fails the background check and/or the DMV records check, OPRD staff and Region Program Coordinator will be notified, and information of the failure will be sent directly to the volunteer from Human Resources.

Forms & Help Guides

- Staff Guide: Background Checks for Volunteers, appendix page 67.

What factors determine if a volunteer passes or fails these background checks?

If a current or potential volunteer would like to know the criteria we use to determine pass or fail of the background checks, direct them to the Department of Administrative Services, OAR, 125-007-0270.

For driving record checks, in general, an acceptable driving record should contain:

- No misdemeanor or felony driving offenses (major traffic offense) in the last 24 months. This includes, but are not limited to, reckless driving, driving under the influence of intoxicants, failing to perform the duties of a driver, criminal driving while suspended or revoked, fleeing or attempting to elude a police officer. Misdemeanor or felony driving offenses are serious offenses that are considered "crimes" for which a sentence of imprisonment is authorized. At the court's election, a misdemeanor may be treated as a violation.
- No felony revocation of driving privileges or felony or misdemeanor driver license suspension within the last 24 months.
- No Class A moving traffic infraction in the last 12 months. Class A moving traffic infractions include, but are not limited to, failure to obey or yield to a traffic patrol member, careless driving, certain violations of speed limits, speed racing on a highway, failure to stop for bus safety lights, and refusing to obey a flagger. Class A violations are the most serious class of traffic violations which are punishable by fines rather than imprisonment.
- No more than three Class B (moving) traffic violations in the last 12 months. Class B Violations are less serious than Class A violations but are a valid indicator of unsafe driving behavior.
- Other information, such as reports of off-road incidents, events with no citation issued, "fender benders" or valid citizen complaints, may be considered as appropriate and available.

Orientations

All volunteers must receive an orientation to their assignment and to the site where they will be volunteering. The type of volunteer service an individual is engaging in will determine the type of information covered in an orientation, as well as the length of time the orientation will take.

No matter the volunteer assignment, the following topics, shared below, are to be addressed in all orientations. For most sections, an example of how this topic could be addressed through orientation for host or long term volunteers and episodic volunteers has been shared in the sections below.

This is not a comprehensive list of all that can be included in a volunteer orientation, but should instead be considered the minimum subject areas to be addressed in an orientation. Management units and divisions will need to assess their location and volunteer assignments to determine what other important subjects should be covered in their orientation.

Orientation Template: A power point template for park host orientations can be found on the R drive here: R:\Volunteer Services\Orientation Templates.

Introduction

This sets the stage for a volunteer's experience with OPRD. Thank them for their volunteer service and share the impact of this service. Be sure your introduction answers this question for volunteers: how does the work they're doing today support Oregon Parks and Recreation Department, the environment, the community, etc.?

Communication

Communication is sharing with volunteers how they can get in touch with OPRD staff and emergency services, the situations where that may be necessary, and how they can expect to receive communication from OPRD.

All volunteers must have a method for immediately communicating with their OPRD unit at all times while they are on-duty. If direct communication is not possible due to geographic or other limitations (ex: they have a personal cell phone, but are in an area with no cell phone service), then an OPRD unit is responsible to have a communication plan in place that establishes communication with volunteers at the beginning and end of their scheduled service hours.

Park Host/Long-Term Volunteer Example: Sharing a phone number list, of staff contacts and emergency services with this volunteer, as well as an explanation of when emergency services or police enforcement should be called.

Episodic Volunteer Example: Sharing information about how they can locate OPRD staff during an event should they need them: physical location (where staff will be), and if cell phone coverage works in the area they'll be volunteering, - and if it does not, how will the group communicate with emergency services (OPRD staff has a radio, here is how it's used, etc.).

Location Overview

Share with volunteers any important site or location information that's relevant to their volunteer service, including emergency evacuation information and the location of the closest emergency services.

Park Host/Long-Term Volunteer Example: Share buildings/locations that these volunteers may need to utilize as part of their service (staff offices, tool storage, visitor center, etc.) as well as locations they'll need to know about to answer customer questions (trail heads, parking, gas stations, etc.).

Episodic Volunteer Example: Volunteers on the coast need information about the site's tsunami evacuation route as well as where the closest emergency services are located to the service/event location.

Service Performance Expectations

Share with volunteers your division's or MU's expectations for the kinds of service activities volunteers will be engaged in, how volunteers interact with staff and their fellow volunteers, as well as expectations for customer service.

Park Host/Long-Term Volunteer Example: During a group park host orientation, staff may not get into the specific details of every assignment, but instead may take time to discuss activities that all hosts do not engage in as part of their service: emergency/first aid response, enforcement, etc.

Episodic Volunteer Example: Volunteers for a one-day invasive plant removal event need to know the details of their assignment including how far from the group they can travel, the tools/resources they can use and whether or not they can utilize their own personal tools/ resources, and expectations of interacting with the public they may encounter.

Welcoming: Engage, Relate, Adapt

Volunteers are in a unique position in OPRD where they are both representatives of the agency, as well as participants in park activities. It's important to create a welcoming experience for volunteers, just as OPRD staff would do for visitors. At the same time, staff need to make it clear to volunteers, that OPRD expects volunteers to create a welcoming environment for visitors, their fellow volunteers, partners/contractors, and staff.

Park Host/Long-Term Volunteer Example: During an orientation, park staff should briefly introduce the concept of engage, relate, and adapt to volunteers, and could give positive examples of situations where volunteers or staff created a welcoming experience for visitors and their fellow volunteers. Additionally, staff could allow space for volunteers to share examples related to their experience engaging, relating, and adapting as a park host with OPRD.

Episodic Volunteer Example: During the general welcome to volunteers supporting a one-day or one-time event, staff can quickly share OPRD's belief in creating a welcoming environment for visitors and volunteers and if at any time a volunteer feels uncomfortable, disrespected, or unsafe by the comments or actions of visitors, volunteers, or staff, they should immediately bring that to the attention of the OPRD staff member, who is here to support them in having a positive experience as a volunteer with OPRD.

Safety Training

Whatever task volunteers engage in, it is the responsibility of the OPRD MU or division to ensure they have received the right information regarding their safety, as well as how to safely perform any task they undertake in their volunteer role.

Orientations should include an overview of personal protective equipment (PPE). PPE that is required of staff to use while performing an activity is also required for volunteers undertaking the same task. Additionally, staff need to direct volunteers in the proper wear and use of PPE.

Park host volunteers, identified as subject workers, have specific requirements for additional volunteer safety training. Information on the required training can be found on page 7.

Park Host/Long-Term Volunteer Example: In addition to the statewide required safety training for park hosts, a park will need to demonstrate proper use and location specific information about a safety task. For example, if mowing is part of park host duties, staff will need to walk through the location of the equipment, how to use that specific mower safely (including required PPE), and share information about areas in the park to avoid (hidden ditches etc.).

Episodic Volunteer Example: Volunteers at a one-day trail work event will need to receive instruction on how to use each tool, guidelines for the distance they should be from another person when using a tool, and the PPE they need to wear when using any of the tools.

General Assignment Training

For all duties within a volunteer assignment, an OPRD unit must provide direct training for those tasks. As tasks will vary assignment to assignment, so will training.

Below are some examples of what training may look like for different kinds of assignment duties:

- Driving state vehicles or utility vehicles (golf carts, gators, etc.) for residential volunteers or long-term volunteers:
 - OPRD staff show volunteers location of keys, vehicle, and any related equipment.
 - Staff share location specific information that is useful (don't make left turns out of the park onto HWY 1, areas that carts are not allowed to travel, following park rules for direction of traffic, etc.).
 - Staff share common safety issues related to the vehicle (how to store equipment, backing, etc.).
 - Staff direct training or visual confirmation of volunteer actually driving the vehicle is HIGHLY encouraged (as it is with any task volunteers engage in with larger equipment).
- Performing brushing and general trail work for episodic volunteer group:
 - OPRD staff orally overview environmental and physical concerns related to using tools (rocks, zone of safety around an individual while using a tool, how to carry tools safely, etc.).
 - Staff demonstrate how to appropriately use trail tools during site orientation.
- Staffing registration table for an event:
 - OPRD staff share general information on event locations and commonly asked questions.
 - Staff overview procedure for registering event guests.
 - Staff share communication plan or how to get in contact with OPRD or other event staff.

Safety Training

Safety training will vary based on the type of volunteer assignment and the volunteer duties being performed. Despite the variances, safety of volunteers is the primary concern for all volunteer assignments. The primary differences in required safety training practices is between residential volunteers/park hosts and all other volunteers:

Park Hosts/Residential Volunteers

As park hosts, volunteers are classified as subject workers, the assignment requirements for safety training and documentation are similar to that of an employee. As such, all park host volunteers are required to:

- Complete OPRD's required safety training. See page 7 for more information
- Receive on-site training related to the specific assignment duties and location they where they are volunteering.
- Participate in monthly safety meetings (required participation of hosts by OSHA). Hosts could have a separate meeting, or be included in the same meeting by park staff.

Park Host Safety Training Overview

Direct Park hosts to complete safety training in advance, online here:

<https://sites.google.com/view/oprd-safety-training/home>.

On this website park hosts review the training materials, and confirm their review by submitting an online form. Online submissions are updated to park host profiles by statewide volunteer program staff on a weekly basis.

Staff should review the training to confirm that they understand what is and is not included in safety training for park hosts.

All Other OPRD Volunteers

All other volunteers are not required to complete the same park host trainings packets. However, a management unit or department may require safety training for an assignment, including the park host safety packets or individual modules, as they deem necessary and related to the volunteer role.

All volunteers are required to receive:

- Receive on-site training related to the specific assignment duties and location they where they are volunteering.

Volunteer End of Service

The end of a volunteer's service with OPRD is an important part of the volunteer process. It's important in scenarios where the experience with volunteers has been positive or negative. This section covers information on what processes and requirements OPRD has related to end of volunteer service.

Feedback and Evaluation

Feedback is important to deliver to volunteers as well as to receive from volunteers. It promotes an environment where OPRD can create successful volunteer experiences, and it allow programs and departments to update and change programs by receiving feedback directly from the volunteers engaged in service.

Feedback for Positive Volunteer Experiences

Although typically feedback is shared and gathered at the end of volunteer service, feedback, especially in situations where a behavior or action of a volunteer needs to change to meet the requirements of an assignment or meet OPRD's expectations, should happen as soon as possible.

The feedback process does not need to be a formal process. And a division or management unit will need to decide what format works best for their programs and volunteer community. Options for feedback may include:

Informal Discussion

Staff can meet with volunteers informally and ask a few general questions to gather information to improve an OPRD program, as well as set that volunteer up for success in their future assignments. Questions/conversation prompts could include:

- What did you like best about this volunteer experience?
- What could be improved?
- Did you feel supported by staff and volunteers?
- Share an example of something that they do well as a volunteer.
- Share an example of an area where they could improve, or that would lead them to have continued positive experiences in the future.
- If there have been any issues/discussions that were addressed between staff and this volunteer, share how well they did making that change, correcting their behavior, or if improvement is still needed.

Written Questionnaire

Write up a questionnaire and give volunteers the opportunity to share feedback on their experience with you outside of a discussion. See an example of a written feedback form in R:\Volunteer Services.

Discussion with Formal Documentation

In addition to meeting with a volunteer in person, complete an evaluation form (one that your department has made or use an OPRD template found on the R:drive, Volunteer Services), and document the conversation in writing. Go over the form together with the volunteer, and upload that form to a volunteer's profile.

Feedback When Expectations are Not Being Met

There will be situations where a volunteer is not meeting the expectations of a volunteer assignment. This could be related to quality of service, relationships with volunteers and staff, or not meeting the expectations within the code of conduct.

Situations will greatly vary from one another, and it's important that these issues are addressed appropriately, and that the right staff members are involved if the situation needs it.

For strategies and processes in communication and feedback when expectations are not being met, review the Volunteer Conflict: Options for Resolution and Dismissal document, on appendix page 84.

Dismissal from Service

Dismissals from service should only be conducted by management staff. Park staff that have determined dismissal may be an option, need to first bring the issue to the attention of their managers, who will begin the process to assess if dismissal is needed.

Forms & Help Guides

- Volunteer Conflict: Options for Resolution and Dismissal document, on appendix page 84.
- Template Dismissal Letter, found in R:\Volunteer Services.

Support Network for Dismissals

Managers are not on their own when it comes to determining if a dismissal is necessary, or what solutions may be offered to resolve the situation in a way where a dismissal is not needed.

Regional program coordinators serve as a resource for managers in a variety of roles, including talking through these difficult situations, sharing information and advice that will help the manager make the ultimate decision regarding a volunteer's dismissal. The statewide volunteer programs coordinator can also serve in this role for managers, including those who's department does not receive support from a region program coordinator.

Identifying the Level of Dismissal: Park/Department or Statewide

When a dismissal from volunteer service is necessary, managers need to determine the level of the dismissal: is this volunteer dismissed from service with their management unit/department, or will they need to be dismissed from all service with OPRD? Because the manager is addressing the issues that lead to the dismissal, if a statewide dismissal from service is needed, the manager will make the decision on that dismissal, and share that with the volunteer during that final conversation.

When considering a dismissal from statewide service, managers are encouraged to discuss their decision with a region program coordinator. However, this is not required as the dismissal from our agency may need to be immediate if the incident is serious, dangerous, or needs to be dealt with right away.

Question to help identify which dismissal is appropriate:

- Is this issue due to a specific location or operations issue?
Example: Is the volunteer not able to keep up with the capacity and turnover of a large campground? This may be a location only issue, where the volunteer may be successful in another assignment at a less busy park location.
- Is this an issue the volunteer will likely face in all future assignments?
Is this an important part of any volunteer assignment, or just this one? If it will affect all assignments, the volunteer should be dismissed from OPRD, not just this MU/division.
Example: A volunteer that engages in a pattern of behavior where they are disrespectful or inappropriate with other volunteers or staff – this affects all assignments, not just the assignment at one MU.

Dismissal from Service: Department or Management Unit

- Inform the volunteer they are being dismissed from service from your specific MU or division.
- Share reasons for dismissal and specifically how this volunteer did not meet the expectations of the assignment.
- Share the kind of locations or assignments that may suit them better at other parks in the future, where they won't run into similar issues or deficits in expectation.
- Inform the regional programs coordinator, so they can communicate with downstream assignments, and determine if a probationary status is needed for future assignments.

Dismissal from Service: OPRD, Statewide

- Recommended: Contact RPC for discussion around statewide dismissal.
- Inform the volunteer that they are being dismissed from service from this specific assignment and from the Oregon Parks and Recreation Department.
- Share the specific reason why they are being dismissed, and how that action or behavior unacceptable for all OPRD service.
- Request to collect the volunteer's OPRD uniform items.
- Inform the regional programs coordinator, who can inactivate the volunteer's profile and input necessary notes and documentation.

Documentation:

- In OPRIS, document dismissal date and reason for dismissal. Provide factual information only.
- If needed and appropriate, have staff involved in dismissal or incidents leading to dismissal, write up witness statements, send them to RPC or statewide volunteer coordinator to save in private volunteer files (outside of OPRIS).
- If a manager deems it necessary, an official dismissal letter may be sent to the volunteer.

A letter may be necessary if there was a question of whether or not the volunteer truly understands the severity of their dismissal, or if they still need to return their uniform.

Retire from Volunteer Service

Volunteers may retire from service with OPRD. When a volunteer notifies staff of their retirement, it's important that their service is recognized.

In the case of any volunteer retirement, notify the regional programs coordinator, who can notify any future or past assignments, record the retirement, and inactivate their volunteer profile.

Ideas for Honoring Volunteers who Retire:

While the recognition programs is being evaluated, below are some suggestions for what MUs and divisions can do to honor the service of volunteers:

- Send them an appreciation card, signed by staff who worked with them.
- If volunteer is currently active, and in the area, host a pot luck or feature them at an upcoming volunteer appreciation event.
- Create a certificate or award of appreciation and mail or deliver to the volunteer in person.
- Reach out to the region programs coordinator for additional support and ideas.

Volunteer Injury

Unfortunately, volunteers are sometimes involved in minor and major injuries. This section identifies the process that OPRD staff should follow when an incident occurs, as well as what staff are involved at different parts of the process.

Park Hosts and Residential Volunteers

Park hosts and residential volunteers are the only OPRD volunteers that are eligible for workers' compensation. As such, their injury reporting process is different than other volunteers when a major injury occurs.

Minor Injury, Hospital Visit Not Required

A minor injury to a park host could include a minor cut, bruise, scrape, insect sting that required minor first aid, but does not require the volunteer to seek further medical attention.

After injury has been treated:

- OPRD staff member completes an Incident Review form in OPRIS, found in Safety section, +Add Incident.
- Select incident type: HOSTDOC.
- Complete HOSTDOC form, and submit to be reviewed by supervisor.

The goal of this documentation is to document that the incident happened, in a timely manner, in case this evolves into a more serious issue.

Major Injury, Hospital Visit Required

A major injury to a park host could include a serious wound or laceration that involves stitches, a serious allergic reaction, any injury that requires EMS or for a volunteer to follow up with a medical professional.

After Injury has occurred:

- OPRD staff member completes an Incident Review form in OPRIS, found in Safety section, +Add Incident. Must be completed within 3 days of the incident occurring.
- Select incident type: HOSTDOC or HOST801.
 - HOSTDOC: Select if it is unclear whether or not the volunteer will be filing worker's compensation claim.
 - HOST801: Select if the volunteer explicitly stated they were filing a workers' compensation claim.
- Complete HOSTDOC or HOST801, and submit to supervisor for review.

For HOST801, Workers' Compensation Claims

The 801 form must be completed and submitted within 5 days of the incident.

1. Follow the steps for Major Injury, Hospital Visit Required section, when an injury has occurred.

2. Manager obtains official 801 form, and sends to volunteer to complete.

Non-management staff are not allowed to review or submit official 801 forms, only managers may review and handle the 801 forms. Forms are found in OPRIS Intranet, Forms and Resources Section, under Safety and Risk.

3. Upon receipt of completed 801 form, manager verifies the information on the form, especially the following sections:
 - a. 3. Shift on Date of Injury: Is the schedule the volunteer listed accurate and does it match what is on their assignment description or written schedule?
 - b. 26. A signature here requires OPRD to file a workers' compensation claim. If the volunteer is unsure whether or not they want to file a claim, they leave this section blank.
4. If form, as completed by the volunteer is:
 - a. Inaccurate (incorrect schedule listed, etc.), include a note sharing what is inaccurate about the form, and upload that in OPRIS along with the 801.
 - b. Accurate, upload the completed 801 to the incident report in OPRIS.
5. Ensure the following documents have been uploaded to the park host's volunteer profile. The risk coordinator needs these documents to verify the claim:
 - a. Volunteer Service Agreement, completed and signed prior to incident.
 - b. Volunteer assignment description or list of duties.
 - c. Volunteer schedule (if not included in the volunteer assignment description).

All Other Volunteers

All volunteers are eligible for Volunteer Injury Coverage except park hosts, residential volunteers, and volunteer intern or service learners. This coverage is only enacted after all other insurances have been utilized.

Minor Injury, Hospital Visit Not Required

A minor injury to a volunteer could include a minor cut, bruise, scrape, insect sting that required minor first aid, but does not require the volunteer to seek further medical attention.

After injury has been treated:

- OPRD staff member completes an Incident Review form in OPRIS, found in Safety section, +Add Incident.
- Select incident type: VOL.
- Complete VOL form, and submit to be reviewed by supervisor.

The goal of this documentation is to document that the incident happened, in case this evolves into a more serious issue.

Major Injury, Hospital Visit Required

A major injury to a volunteer could include a serious wound or laceration that involves stitches, a serious allergic reaction, any injury that requires EMS or for a volunteer to follow up with a medical professional.

After injury has occurred

If a volunteer wishes to process an injury claim for Volunteer Injury Coverage, the incident report must be submitted within 5 days of the incident.

1. OPRD staff member completes an Incident Review form in OPRIS, found in Safety section, +Add Incident.
2. Select incident type: VOL.
3. Complete VOL form, and submit to be reviewed by supervisor.
4. Ensure the following documents have been uploaded to the volunteer's profile. The Risk Coordinator needs these documents to verify the claim.
 - Volunteer Service Agreement, completed and signed prior to incident.
 - Volunteer assignment description or list of duties.
 - Volunteer schedule (if not included in the volunteer assignment description).
5. Contact Amber Allen, the Risk Coordinator, to inform them that a Volunteer Injury Coverage claim is being requested: amber.allen@oregon.gov or (503) 986-0657.

Forms & Resources

- SAIF 801 Form found in OPRIS: Forms/Resources – Safety and Risk

Volunteer Incidents

Volunteers may be involved in other incidents or situations where an incident form should be completed. Refer to the table below to see the type of incidents that require documentation to be submitted through OPRIS, in the Safety section, + Add Incident:

Incident Review Form:

Incident Type	Incident Form Description	Example of Incident that Required this Form
HOST	Incident involving an OPRD host.	A park host had their personal property stolen or damaged.
HOST801	Incident involving an OPRD host that required medical intervention.	A park host cut their hand while re-pairing a bench. Injury required stitches.
HOSTDOC	Incident involving an OPRD Host – just documenting something took place.	A park host sprained their ankle while cleaning campsites, it required minimal first aid and no further medical care is known to be required.
VOL	Incident involving an OPRD volunteers (not a subject worker).	A volunteer tripped and fell while participating in a trail work party. The injury did or did not require additional medical treatment.
VEHHOST	Incident caused by or done to an OPRD park host when in a state of Oregon owned vehicle.	A host was driving a state vehicle when a rock was kicked up by a vehicle they were following and cracked the windshield.
VEHVOL	Incident caused by or done to volunteer when in a state of Oregon owned vehicle.	A volunteer was driving a state vehicle and they backed into a low fence, denting the bumper.

Volunteer Appreciation and Recognition

Recognizing and appreciating the service volunteers contribute to OPRD is crucial to fostering stewardship within OPRD. Volunteers, individuals, and groups, deserve to be recognized for their efforts, and valued for their contributions.

Service Recognition

Recognizing volunteers is extremely important, and can create a positive volunteer culture in a management unit or division.

The following are simple ways a division or management unit can help foster an environment of support and appreciation within their volunteer community:

- When staff see volunteers, a simple wave or hello go a long way.
- Stop and thank volunteers in person whenever possible.
- Recognize the contribution of a volunteer or group of volunteers by mentioning their accomplishments at a staff or volunteer meeting where they and other staff/volunteers are present.
- Give volunteers leadership opportunities. For volunteers who are far exceed your expectations, request their help with a specific project; one that speaks to their skills and your trust in their ability: writing a training manual for a specific task, training other volunteers, etc.
- Send them a thank you card—by mail or email. Find templates located here:
R:\Volunteer Services\Volunteer Appreciation\Ecards.

Awards

New awards are being developed and the award nomination process is also currently under review. Below is a description of current active awards.

Gen Angdahl Outstanding Host Award

Annual award to appreciate, honor, and recognize outstanding park hosts who volunteer at OPRD campgrounds and day use areas. All categories of park hosts will be considered; campground, visitor services, store, yurt/cabin, maintenance, interpretive, Junior Ranger, special projects, day use, etc.

Items and Gifts

A small gift or token of appreciation serves as a thank you, as a reminder of service performed, and as a recruitment tool for new volunteers.

To order statewide appreciation items and gifts for your unit's volunteers, utilize the Volunteer Supplies Order Form, found on OPRIS and in R:\Volunteer Services.

Management Units and Divisions are able to supplement statewide items and gifts and purchase their own to provide for volunteers. Following guidance on gifts and awards given to volunteers, the total annual amount of all gifts given, needs to be less than $50 per volunteer. Cash and gift cards are not eligible to be received as gifts. If developing a unique item that involves the OPRD brand, consult with the Communications Division to develop brand approved options.

Hour Recognition

Park hosts are the only volunteer group that currently receives volunteer hour recognition awards in the form of a pin and hour bar.

Hour bars are distributed by the region program coordinators and the statewide volunteer programs coordinator on a monthly. Contact your RPC to arrange additional distribution of hour bars.

Appreciation Events

Following the Non-Travel Meals and Refreshments Policy and Procedure, management units and divisions are able to host two volunteer appreciation events annually.

September is OPRD's Volunteer Appreciation Month

OPRD staff are encouraged to host one of these events in September during the month the agency has chosen to recognize park volunteers.

Non-Travel Meals and Refreshments Guidelines for Volunteer Events

- MUs and divisions may host volunteer recognition events that utilize state funds, two times a year. Refreshments may be provided, but meals may not be a part of the appreciation event. The event cannot be a volunteer appreciation breakfast, lunch, or dinner.
- Refreshments for these events may be provided at a rate of up to $5.00 per person attending (current policy amount as of 11/1/20).
- Refreshments include: essential serving products (plates, cups, utensils, napkins, etc.), beverages (including cream and sugar for coffee/tea), and any food deemed necessary to support your volunteer appreciation event (must stay within the $5.00 per person amount).

Example, allowed: Within the refreshment budget of $5.00 per attendee, your MU may host a volunteer appreciation event, where burgers (including all the fixings) and drinks are provided by OPRD OR cake, brownies, fruit, and beverages (including plates and silverware).

Example, not allowed: Within the refreshment budget of $5.00 per attendee, your MU hosts a volunteer appreciation LUNCH, where individual box lunches are provided to each attendee.

Official Definitions, from the Non-Travel Meals and Refreshments Policy:

Meals: Food and beverages provided at breakfast, lunch, or dinner to attendees of agency sponsored functions.

Refreshments: Beverages such as coffee, tea, bottled water, juice, soda, and similar liquid refreshments as well as sugar and creamer. Food items, such as fruit, pastries, chips, cookies, cake, candy, etc. are also considered refreshments.

Procedure: Non-Travel Meals and Refreshments for Volunteer Events

- Get permission from management to host a volunteer appreciation event.

- Complete the Non-Travel, Meal, Refreshment and Event Authorization form, and have it approved by your MU or division manager.
- In addition to the pre-approval form, provide an agenda for the event and a list of the attendees.
- Document all refreshment purchases.
- Manager keeps the signed Non-Travel, Meal, Refreshment and Event Authorization form for their records/receipt tracking.
- Use the Volunteer Supply Order Form to order appreciation gifts for your volunteers to distribute at the event.

Group Agreement Comparison: General Group, Adopt-A-Park, and Contracting

	General Group	Adopt-A-Park	Contracting
In General, Agreement Best Serves:	- Groups that are interested in volunteer service, but may only want to show up, be instructed on what to do by staff, and leave (no major involvement in planning for service projects) - Groups that call for one-time service projects: scout groups, youth groups, corporate groups, etc.	- Groups that are connected to a specific place (building, trail, park, etc.), and want to support service for that place at least 2x annually. - Groups interested in service that the park, MU, district, etc. wants to develop a partnership with. - Groups that are more invested in identifying the specific locations and kinds of service they will provide (plan service projects together with management).	- Groups that need financial sponsorship that is directly related to volunteer service projects. - Groups that have their own liability and/or volunteer insurance. - Groups that want OPRD to support a service event or project, but engage in activities not permitted by the OPRD Volunteer Policy.
Agreement Forms Needed	Volunteer Service Agreement: Episodic Volunteer	- Adopt-A-Park Agreement & Attachments - Volunteer Service Agreement(s)	Procurements will create contract through OPRD contracting process.
Volunteer Service Agreement (VSA) Needed:	Volunteer Service Agreement: Episodic Volunteer	Episodic Volunteer or Individual Volunteer (whichever works best for the volunteer service identified in the agreement)	VSA is not applicable, as groups are identified as independent contractors.
Appreciation & Recognition:	- Day of service recognition as provided by Management Unit. - Recognition of group or individual service (total group hours) is possible by MUs, Region, or the Statewide level. - Not eligible for awards, due to inability to track as a group using this agreement.	- Day of service recognition as provided by Management Unit. - Recognition of group contributions, including total group service hours annually and over agreement lifetime can be appreciated and recognized by MUs, Region, and the Statewide level. - Eligible for awards. - Adopt-A-Park Sign recognition	- Day of service recognition as provided by Management Unit. - Recognition of group contribution can be appreciated and recognized by MUs, Region, and the Statewide level. - Eligible for awards (partner).
Staff Time Commitment:	Low	Moderate to High (depending on complexity)	Moderate to High (depending on complexity)
Are the volunteers or groups OPRD Volunteers?	Yes	Yes	No
Required to Follow OPRD, VOL.010 Volunteer Management Policy?	Yes	Yes	No
Covered by State of Oregon Tort Liability and	Yes	Yes	No

Volunteer Injury Coverage (VSA)
	General Group	Adopt-A-Park	Contracting
OPRD has ability to accept financial contributions from group for specified volunteer service projects:	Yes	Yes	Yes
OPRD has ability to give financial contributions directly to partner group for volunteer service:	No	No	Yes

A Couple Notes on the Agreements:

- When pursuing Contract options, always talk with OPRD's Procurements section. Information is oversimplified, and there may be additional requirements and information about contracting that they can best advise you on for your specific situation.
- It is possible to have an Adopt-A-Park agreement for volunteer service with a group, and a separate contract with the group where sponsorship funds are provided to the group. This is possible as long as the exchange of funds is not directly related to any of the activities in the Adopt-A-Park agreement.
- Tort liability and volunteer injury coverage are provided to OPRD volunteers through a signed volunteer service agreement. Tort liability and volunteer injury coverage are not able to be extended to groups who are not identified as OPRD volunteers, or groups performing activities that are not identified in an OPRD agreement, or for the activities outlined in a contract agreement with OPRD and the group.
- If a group does not have any insurance coverage or tort liability coverage, a contract is not an option to pursue, as contractors are not covered by State of Oregon volunteer tort liability or injury coverage.

Which Volunteers Need Background Checks & How Often?

Which Volunteers Need a Background Check and Driving Records Check?

- HOSTS: Need both the criminal background check and the driver's record check.
- RESIDENTIAL GUESTS OF HOSTS: Anyone over the age of 18, staying with a volunteer host at their site, even if they are not volunteering, must also pass a criminal background check to live onsite with a host during their term of service.
- ALL OTHER VOLUNTEERS:

Driving Records Check:

If the volunteer will be driving a state vehicle, utility vehicle, or personal vehicle as a part of volunteer service, they will require both a criminal and driving records check.

Criminal Records Check:

If the answer is yes to ANY of these questions, the volunteer needs to have a criminal records background check completed:

1. Will this volunteer be performing service, where they may not be directly supervised by Park staff, and they have the possibility of engaging with vulnerable populations (children, the elderly, etc.)?
2. Will this volunteer work with sensitive documents and information (financial records, sensitive customer data, sensitive historic artifacts, etc.)?

How Often are Background Checks Needed?

Background Checks are needed on an annual basis. They expire one year after they have been completed.

Background Checks MUST be completed before a volunteer or host begins ANY volunteer service with OPRD if the nature of their volunteer assignment requires a background check. It is the responsibility of the Volunteer Service Leader to ensure that a volunteer's background check has been submitted and has been approved before they begin service.

Submitting a Background Check on a Volunteer

The complete background check automatically includes both the criminal records and driving records check. All park hosts need a complete background check.

Non-host volunteers who do not have driving as a part of their volunteer responsibilities do not need to complete the driving records check portion of the background check process. The instructions below inform how to remove this specific records check, and only request a criminal background check on potential volunteers.

Additionally, adult residential guests of park host volunteers who will be staying on site with a volunteer longer than 7 days will need to pass a criminal background check. A driving records check is not required for residential guests of park hosts.

For information on what type of background check is required for other volunteers, go to section: Which Volunteers Need Background Checks & How Often? (Pg. 2)

The Volunteer will receive an automatic email. Each individual volunteer is responsible for submitting the rest of the information needed for a background check online. The link in this automatic email will expire 10 days from the date of the initial submission. The expiration date can be reset.

Dear ALLISON EXAMPLE WATSON,

As part of your application to volunteer with Oregon Parks and Recreation Department, you will need to fill out the attached background questionnaire so that the Company can conduct a background check. As part of that process, you will need to electronically sign a Disclosure and Authorization form ("Authorization Form") consenting to these checks. This Authorization Form will allow our background agency, contracted Advanced Reporting LLC, to verify the information you provide and share its results with Oregon Parks and Recreation Department.

The questionnaire takes approximately 15 minutes to complete and we recommend that you double check the information you provide to ensure there is no delay with your application to volunteer.

An associate from Advanced Reporting LLC may contact you for additional information during the verification process. Please respond promptly so Oregon Parks and Recreation Department can complete the background verification as quickly as possible so as not to delay the selection process.

Please click on the link below to begin the process. Please note this link will expire within 10 days, and if the background questionnaire is not completed within this time, you may not be considered for a volunteer position with Oregon Parks and Recreation Department.

If you need any assistance while filling out the questionnaire, you may contact Advanced Reporting LLC at 503-375-0451 or by e-mail at info@advrep.com.

If you have feedback or suggestions about the questionnaire, please contact Advanced Reporting LLC at info@advrep.com.

Thank you,

Oregon Parks and Recreation Department

Documenting Approved Background Checks: Driving & Criminal

Park staff who requested the initial background check will receive an email on the status of the volunteer's background check.

Depending on the volunteer, their application may go into REVIEW or PENDING. Whenever a volunteer background check changes status, an email is sent out to staff.

Only the APPROVED email means the volunteer has passed all of the requested background checks and that they may begin volunteer service.

Example Emails:

Approved Email

Receiving this email means that the volunteer has completed and passed all the background checks requested.

For park hosts, unless Human Resources or your Regional Program Coordinator contact you to state otherwise, this one email means they have passed both their criminal background and driving records check.

In Process, Not Final Emails

Receiving either of these emails mean that the background check has not yet completed. It is only a status update. You still have yet to receive a final email stating APPROVED or FAILED.

Incomplete status updated: Pending, Review.

Process for Background Check Fails

Volunteers who fail the background check are not able to volunteer in Oregon State Parks.

How will the Volunteer Service Leader know if a volunteer fails the background check?

Email from Human Resources: If a background check is not passed, the volunteer failed the criminal background check, driver's check, or both. Staff will receive email notification from Human Resources. This email will be sent to the Volunteer Service Leader who made the request, the Park Manager, and the Regional Programs Manager.

What communication does the volunteer receive on their failure of the background check?

Human Resources will communicate the failure with the host or other volunteer, and the Volunteer Service Leader DOES NOT need to provide any additional communication with this individual on the reasons behind their failure of the check. This information is not shared with any staff and only HR staff may discuss this with the volunteer.

What needs to be documented by the Volunteer Service Leader?

Failure of a Criminal Background Check: Nothing needs to be done by the Volunteer Service Leader when they are notified of a failure for a volunteer's background check. Human Resources will make a notation on the individual's profile in Advanced Reporting and the Regional Program Coordinator will make notes on the individual's OPRIS profile, update their requirements to reflect the failure, notify all upcoming scheduled host assignments, and/or set their application to inactive.

Failure of the DMV Check, but Passing Criminal Background Check: Volunteer Service Leader documents the date of the DMV check and marks the check as failed. They also document the date of the criminal background check and marks the check as passed. The date of the criminal background check and the DMV check will most always be the same date.

What if the adult residential guests of a volunteer fails their criminal background check?

If the guests of a residential host fails the criminal background check, they are not able to live on site with a host during their volunteer service:

- IF the host agrees to not have that individual be their residential guest for the duration of their host assignment in the Park, they are APPROVED for volunteer service as a host.
- IF the host is not willing or able to have their guest reside outside of the Park for the duration of their host assignment, they are NOT APPROVED for volunteer service as a host.

Checking the Status of a Background Check

After staff submit a background check, an email will be sent to them that states when the background check has been completed.

For information on the confirmation email(s) for background checks, go to section: Documenting Approved Background Checks (Pg. 2)

There may be some occasions where you'll need to search for a volunteer's background check in the advanced reporting system: To verify what part of the process they're in from initially submitting it to having a complete check, their OPRIS records are not updated, but Advanced Reporting alerted you there is a recent check on file for them, etc.

How to check and verify the status of an individual's background check:

The image shows a screenshot of the Advanced Reporting LLC website. On the left, a grey box titled "Search for Records" contains a numbered instruction: "1. On the top of the Advanced Reporting home page, type the last name of the volunteer into the search bar." A green arrow points from this instruction to a search bar on the website. The search bar is located in the top right corner of the website, next to a "Utilities" dropdown menu and a user profile icon labeled "AW". The search bar contains the text "Last Name" and a magnifying glass icon. Below the search bar, the website displays the user's last login information: "Your last login was on Aug 24th at 12:16 pm". To the right of the search bar, there is a section titled "Advanced Reporting LLC" which lists contact information: Phone: 503-375-0451, Toll Free: 888-375-0451, Fax: 503-364-0195, Fax Toll: 877-450-2774, Free: info@advrep.com, Email: info@advrep.com, Address: PO Box 12398, Salem, OR 97309. Below this section, there is a partially visible text: "through a lot this and respond to".

Search Results

1. If you have too many results, you can filter the results further by typing in the volunteers first name in the filter box on the top, right side of the results list.
2. To find the most recent background check requested, sort by ORDERED. Select the down arrow to the right of the word ordered. This will show you the most recent background check we have for this individual.
3. To verify what parts of their background check they passed or have been completed, click on the file number for the most recent report.
4. IMPORTANT: Open the background check file to verify, do not just check the status and color of the flag for verification as it is displayed in the list below. It is possible for a volunteer to have a different status listed on their full file.

Verify: Is the check complete? Has it been approved?

1. First you'll need to verify that the background check was completed. Check the STATUS section for the word COMPLETE. Only the word complete means the check has been finished.
 - If the Status states:
 - App Pending – The volunteer has yet to input their information into the online background check form.
 - Pending or In Process – Advanced Reporting is still processing the background check.
2. If it is complete, you will need to verify that it was APPROVED. Check the DECISION section. Only APPROVED background checks mean that the check is complete and the volunteer has been approved for se
 - If the Status states:
 - REVIEW– HR staff still need to review the background check to see if it meets OPRD requirements.

Verify: Passed Driving Records Check?

1. Verify that this background check included a driving records check. On the volunteer's report, scroll down to the Search Results Section, which includes the types of checks completed on a volunteer.
2. In that Section, there should be a subheading that states DRIVING RECORDS, and the state or state(s) this volunteer has a driving records check from will be listed. If you see this, this background check included a driving records check. If this section is missing, the search only included a criminal background check.
3. CHECK CLIENT NOTES: Towards the bottom of a volunteer's file will be a section titled CLIENT NOTES. Review these to see if Human Resources staff included a note that states "not approved for driving." If you see this note, it means the volunteer met OPRD's requirements for a criminal background check, but did not meet out requirements for driving, and they are not allowed to drive as part of their volunteer service.

Resetting the Expiration Date of a Volunteer's Background Check

The initial email to volunteers requesting the background check is only active for 10 days. If a volunteer waited too long to start the background check, the link will no longer work. However, staff can easily extend the expiration date of the background check request, and send a second email link/reminder to a volunteer.

How to Extend the Expiration Date of a Background Check and Resend the Email Request

Find the Request

1. Select ORDER.
2. Select APPLICANT PENDING from the dropdown menu.

Reset Expiration & Resend Request

1. Use the filter bar to type in the name of the volunteer who's report you need to reset.
2. The DAYS LEFT column shares how many remaining days the initial background check link will be active.
3. Click the checkbox to the right of the volunteer's name.
4. Select RESET EXPIRATION (important that you do this before resending invitation)
5. Click the checkbox to the right of the volunteer's name.
6. Select RESEND INVITATION.

Additional Steps in the Process for Washington, Alaska, & British Columbia

Due to a laws in the states of Washington and Alaska, as well as British Columbia, in order for driving records of volunteers from this area to be released, they need to complete an additional form.

Staff members do not need to do anything else, including providing the additional form directly to a volunteer after requesting the initial background check. Further instruction to the volunteer, a copy of the form, and the collection of this additional form will be handled by HR. The staff member who made the initial background check request will be CC'd on any emails from HR to the volunteer on the additional process for Washington, Alaska, and British Columbia driving records checks.

If the check needs to be processed immediately, staff can send the specific state or territory's driving records release forms to volunteers, and request that they finish and submit that directly to Human Resources.

- The forms can be found online on the volunteer voice website, where volunteers may access them: <https://sites.google.com/view/oprdvolunteervoice/forms-requirements-resources>.
- Volunteers should send completed driving records release forms to Amberly Rislove in HR: Amberly.Rislove@oregon.gov.

OPRD Volunteer Assignment Interviews

For assignments that require special or advanced skills, are only available to a limited number of individuals, or require volunteers to temporarily live on site, the interview is an important part of the recruitment process. It gives staff additional information on potential volunteer candidates to ensure they can fulfill the required qualification of a role as well as to identify who the most qualified candidate may be.

Setting up Interviews for Success, for Staff and Volunteers

- Share your selection process with volunteers. Do you interview candidates on a first come, first serve basis? Do you interview 3-5 volunteers individually, and select the most qualified candidate? Do qualified volunteers not selected have the opportunity to be placed in a different assignment with your park? When can volunteers learn whether or not they have been selected? Share your selection process with volunteers, and let them know when and how they will be contacted about their selection for a volunteer assignment.
- Don't surprise volunteers, schedule interviews. Schedule a specific time for the interview. Let volunteers know about how long the interview is expected to take. No one wants to receive a surprise interview call while they are in the supermarket.
- Utilize online scheduling tools. Save time coordinating interviews with your schedule. Websites like the ones listed here allow you to list times you are available to conduct interviews, and allow volunteers to select a time that works for them. Try www.doodle.com or www.signupgenius.com.
- Be flexible, make accommodations when requested. Volunteer assignments are open to individuals from all backgrounds and abilities. Example: phone interviews may work for most folks, but can be barriers for individuals with limited hearing, video or in person may work better.

Questions for Volunteer Interviews

Interviews for volunteer assignments are an opportunity for staff to confirm that a potential volunteer meets the requirements for the assignment, if they will be successful on site (if they will be living onsite temporarily), and how they will represent OPRD as a volunteer.

Below are a list of some questions staff may utilize in interviews. In selecting questions, think about what information you'd like to know that would be helpful in identifying a volunteer's ability to engage in a specific role at your park. Select the options that work best for the park and the volunteer role.

- Why are you interested in this volunteer assignment?
- What parts of this volunteer assignment do you think will be the most difficult for you, why?
- Ensuring visitors, staff, and volunteers of all cultures and backgrounds feel welcome in our parks and programs is important to OPRD. How would you support a park community where people feel respected and included? Or how would you ensure other volunteers feel like they are a part of the park's community?
- Do you prefer to do volunteer work with others or accomplish service tasks as on your own? Why?
- *Scenario: You're walking to the park office to pick up litter picking tools. A camper is walking towards you, while smoking a cigarette. As you get closer to this camper, you share with them that there are designated smoking areas in the park, and if they don't know where these are, you'll be glad to show them. The camper loudly yells, "mind your own business!" glares at you and keeps walking by you. What do you do?

*Scenario questions can help you identify how a potential volunteer may interact with guests or staff. However, an individual, especially a new volunteer, may not know all of our policies on things like non-enforcement activities, etc. Don't hold someone's lack of knowledge on park rules as an immediate exclusion from a position.

Questions to Ask for Park Hosts or Anyone Living on Site

It is highly encouraged, that in addition to the screening questions that best serve your location, staff include these few questions in any part of your park host interview and/or screening process:

1. Will you have anyone else living with you while you volunteer as a host?

It's important to know if a volunteer will have a residential guests, and for staff to share that their guest will need to agree to OPRD's standards of conduct for residential guests. If the guest is over 18, they will need to pass a criminal background check, and that the host is ultimately responsible for the behavior of their guest.

2. Do you have any children under the age of 18 who will be staying with you while you host?

It is important to share that anyone under the age of 18 cannot volunteer as a host or assist with any of the host volunteer service activities. Also, if any children are under the age of 10, they will need to be supervised appropriately at all times, including during times when this host is engaged in volunteer service.

3. Will there be any pets that will be staying with you while you host?

Volunteers are responsible for the actions and behavior of their pets, and pets that threaten the safety of the public, staff, and volunteers will be banned from OPRD properties. Additionally, the park host will need to meet the pet vaccination and licensing requirements for Oregon.

4. What kind of residence will you be using as a host (RV, Vehicle, Tent)?

It is not a requirement that all park hosts need to have a recreational vehicle to be a park host. It is up to each individual park to determine if they have sites suitable for park hosts in tents to serve. Regardless of the type of residence, volunteers will need to meet OPRD's standards for campsite appearance and safety.

OPRD staff should have a conversation with park management about the potential hosts in tents before they begin the interview process so both OPRD staff and management have clear expectations for residences.

Regional program coordinators can be of help during these discussions. If you're unsure of how your park could support a park host outside of a traditional recreational vehicle, include them in the discussion early to provide some insight into how other parks work with non-RV park hosts.

Volunteer Reference Checks

Although not always required, reference checks on volunteers can be helpful in verifying a volunteer candidate's stated experience during the interview process, as well as when considering a new individual, who has never volunteered with Oregon Parks and Recreation Department.

Reference checks should be done after an initial interview with a volunteer, when a park has identified an individual as a leading candidate, but before an official offer of the role has been made. Reference checks may be completed over the phone or by email.

Below are a few questions you may choose to use during your reference checks on volunteers. If you utilize other questions during the reference check process, ensure that they are appropriate to be asked of the reference and do not discriminate against the potential volunteer. If you're unsure, ask your Regional Programs Coordinator to review the alternative questions you have chosen.

Introduce yourself to the Reference

Who are you? Share your name, job title, park or unit with the reference.

Why are you calling? Explain that a potential volunteer, volunteer name, had listed them as a reference for a volunteer assignment with your park.

What do you need from them? Share that you're hoping to get some more information on their past experience with the potential volunteer. Explain the volunteer assignment the applicant has applied for and what the general tasks and responsibilities are to the reference.

Questions for References

1. How long have you known [name of applicant] and in what capacity?
2. Have you ever observed [name of applicant] working or volunteering in this type of role?
3. What aspects of [name of applicant]'s background do you think would make them successful in this volunteer role?
4. How would you describe [applicant's name]'s customer service skills?
5. How would you describe [applicant's name]'s interaction and ability to work with youth?
6. Would you recommend [applicant's name] for this volunteer role?

Volunteer Conflict: Options for Resolution and Dismissal

	OPRD Staff Involved/Role:	Address the Issue:	Resolve the Issue: Remain an Active Volunteer	Resolve the Issue: Negative Interaction
Minor Issue Examples: Volunteer is late to volunteer assignments, quality of volunteer tasks completed is poor, volunteer residential site does not meet OPRD standards, etc.	OPRD Staff: Any OPRD staff that work directly with a volunteer may address a minor issue with a volunteer. If issue needs to be repeatedly addressed, management should be involved. Regional Program Coordinator (RPC) or Statewide Volunteer Program Coordinator: Available by staff request to talk through the conversation any issue with OPRD staff, regardless of how small an issue may be.	Initial Conversation: Talk directly with the volunteer, informally and not in front of the general public or other volunteers/staff to avoid defensiveness or embarrassment of the volunteer. Listen for Understanding: Ask questions to understand why this issue may be occurring, and when possible, assume positive intent. For example, consider if there is anything going on in the volunteer's personal life that may be affecting or creating this issue. Share Relevant Information: Will providing additional documentation be helpful for this specific situation? If so, provide it to them again. - Volunteer's Assignment Description - Volunteer Service Agreement (includes Code of Conduct)	End with a request for the behavior/action to change: - Clearly explain what the expectations are from this conversation moving forward. - Invite them to come to you directly with any further concerns related to this discussion/behavior/actions. How does OPRD help resolve issue? If the situation allows for OPRD to help implement a solution to resolve the situation, suggest it and enact it. For example: provide additional training, provide additional materials, modify tasks where appropriate, etc. Documentation: In OPRIS, briefly document the issue and how it was resolved. This is helpful if the behavior or action continues, and more serious steps need to be taken. Only, managers have permissions to add notes in OPRIS.	Involve Management: - If the conversation does not go well, staff should excuse themselves from it, and discuss the situation with their manager to identify next steps. - Or, if the behavior continues, involve the park manager. Example: If the volunteer did not agree to change, or more behaviors actions occurred that are of concern - involve management Situation will rise to the level of a Moderate Issue or Serious issue, as identified by manager.
Example Minor Issue	Volunteer Joe is not performing any of the cleaning tasks and responsibilities associated with his visitor center assignment.	Initial Conversation: Ask if Joe is available to chat with you following their next visitor center shift. Share Relevant Information: Share with Joe his volunteer assignment description. Listen for Understanding: Ask if he knew that minor cleaning was a part of his volunteer assigned duties. Ask if there is anything preventing him from performing these tasks.	In this situation, Joe did not know the location of the cleaning supplies. End with a request for the behavior/action to change: Reiterate that all Visitor Center volunteers are expected to perform a list of cleaning tasks. How does OPRD help resolve issue? OPRD staff will show Joe where the cleaning supplies are, and if Joe doesn't know how to do a certain part of his assignment, that he agrees to ask OPRD staff for help. Documentation: In OPRIS notes example: 6-1-19: Following a misunderstanding of the role, expectations of volunteer cleaning duties we reshared and agreed to by OPRD staff and volunteer Joe for the visitor center volunteer assignment.	If Joe continues to ignore his cleaning tasks or is Joe just refused to do the expected cleaning duties, staff should excuse themselves from the conversation, and discuss the situation with their manager to determine next steps. In this example, it would become a Moderate Issue.

	OPRD Staff Involved/Role:	Address the Issue:	Resolve the Issue: Remain an Active Volunteer	Resolve the Issue: Dismissal
Moderate Issue Examples: Volunteer continues to perform actions that were addressed as a minor issue previously, Volunteer is disrespectful to staff/volunteers/guests, Volunteer knowingly commits minor OPRD rule infraction (example dog off leash).	OPRD Manager: - Leader of process and holds ultimate decision on resolution of dismissal. - Reach out to RPC to discuss the issue, before approaching volunteer, as needed. - Informs RPC when dismissal has taken place. Regional Program Coordinator (RPC) or Statewide Volunteer Program Coordinator: - Advise and discuss situation and possible resolution/dismissal with OPRD manager, when requested. - Informed by manager when dismissal has taken place, verifies documentation.	Initial Conversation: Talk directly with the volunteer, not in front of the general public or other volunteers/staff to avoid defensiveness or embarrassment from the volunteer. A more formal conversation and location may be needed. Listen for Understanding: Ask questions to understand why this issue may be occurring, and when possible, assume positive intent. The goal is to find understanding, not locate the excuse, the behavior/action is unacceptable no matter the reason. Share Relevant Information: Highly recommended to bring in both: - Volunteer Assignment Description - Volunteer Service Agreement, which includes the Code of Conduct, As volunteers signed and agreed to abide by upon joining as a volunteer.	End with a request for the behavior/action to change: - Clearly explain what the expectations are from this conversation forward, including the potential for dismissal from service is behavior/action continues. - Recommended to have volunteer re-sign and recommit to their Volunteer Service Agreement. Highlight sections that they need to recommit to as a volunteer. - Invite them to come to you directly with any further concerns related to this discussion/behavior/actions. How does OPRD help resolve issue? If the situation allows for OPRD to help implement a solution to resolve the situation, suggest it and enact it. Documentation: In OPRIS, briefly document the issue and how it was resolved. This is helpful if the behavior or action continues, and more serious steps need to be taken.	Dismissal Resolves the Situation when: - Volunteer is not remorseful or does not have a respectful understanding that the behavior/action is unacceptable. - Volunteer does not agree to resign Volunteer Service Agreement or commit to change behavior/action. - Volunteer becomes aggressive or disrespectful during resolution conversation. Identify the Level of Dismissal Should this volunteer be dismissed from this department or management unit, or from all future service with OPRD? Manager will communicate the dismissal from their MU/Department or the dismissal from all service with OPRD to the volunteer. Question to help identify which dismissal is appropriate: - Is this issue due to a specific location or operations issue? Example: Is the volunteer not able to keep up with the capacity and turnover of a large campground? This may be a location-only issue, where the volunteer may be successful in another assignment. - Is this an issue the volunteer will likely face in all future assignments? Is this an important part of any volunteer assignment, or just this one? If it will affect all assignments, they should be dismissed from OPRD, not just this MU/Department. Dismissal from Service: Department or Management Unit - Inform the volunteer they are being dismissed from service from your specific MU or department - Share reasons for dismissal and specifically how this volunteer did not meet the expectations of the assignment - Share the kind of locations or assignments that may suit them better at other parks in the future, where they won't run into similar issue or deficits in expectation. - Inform RPC so they can communicate with downstream assignments, and determine if a probationary status is needed for future assignments. Dismissal from Service: OPRD, Statewide: - Inform the volunteer that they are being dismissed from service from this specific assignment and from the Oregon Parks and Recreation Department - Share the specific reason why they are being dismissed, and how that action/behavior unacceptable for all OPRD service. - Request to collect the volunteer's OPRD uniform items. Documentation: - In OPRIS, document dismissal date, and reason for dismissal. Factual information only. - If needed/appropriate have anyone involved in dismissal or incidents leading to dismissal write up witness statements, send them to RPC or Statewide Volunteer Coordinator to save in private volunteer files (outside of OPRIS). - If a manager deems it necessary, an official dismissal letter may be sent to the volunteer. Templates are available in the staff handbook. Letter may be necessary if there was a question of whether or not the volunteer truly understands the severity of their dismissal, or if they still need to return their uniform.

	OPRD Staff Involved/Role:	Address the Issue:	Resolve the Issue: Remain Active Volunteer	Resolve the Issue: Dismissal
Severe Issue Examples: Volunteer engages in any form of harassment or violent behavior, their behavior or actions endanger themselves or others, use of alcohol or other substances during service, continued behavior/action that was addressed previously for moderate issues, etc.	OPRD Manager: • Leader of process and holds ultimate decision on resolution of dismissal. • If situation involved a violation of the discrimination and harassment policy, involve HR. Volunteers, in addition to staff, fall under this policy. • Reach out to RPC to discuss the issue, before approaching volunteer, as needed. • Informs RPC when dismissal has taken place. Regional Program Coordinator (RPC) or Statewide Volunteer Program Coordinator: • Advise and discuss situation and possible resolution/dismissal with OPRD manager, when requested. • Informed by manager when dismissal has taken place. • If RPC believes there is a possible violation to the discrimination and harassment policy, they will involve HR in the issue.	For severe issues, volunteers will be dismissed from volunteer service with OPRD.	For severe issues, volunteers will be dismissed from service with OPRD.	Inform the Regional Programs Coordinator: • Depending on the severity of the behavior/issue, additional documentation may be needed, or other parties may need to be informed. The Regional Program Coordinator, coordinates this communication within OPRD. Dismissal from Service: OPRD, Statewide: • Inform the volunteer that they are being dismissed from service from this specific assignment and from the Oregon Parks and Recreation Department. • Share the specific reason why they are being dismissed, and how that action/behavior unacceptable for all OPRD service. • Request to collect the volunteer's OPRD uniform items. Documentation: • In OPRIS, document dismissal date, and reason for dismissal. Factual information only. • If needed/appropriate have anyone involved in dismissal or incidents leading to dismissal write up witness statements, send them to RPC or Statewide Volunteer Coordinator to save in private volunteer files (outside of OPRIS). • For serious dismissals, managers should consider whether or not an official dismissal letter should be sent by mail.

INTRODUCTION & OVERVIEW

Summary Policy Statement

Oregon Parks and Recreation Department (OPRD) is directed by a vision to “take the long view to protect Oregon’s special places and provide the greatest experience while creating stable future funding.” OPRD’s volunteer programs provide great experiences for both volunteer participants and customers, while supporting a vision to achieve OPRD goals. A consistent volunteer policy permits OPRD to provide positive volunteer experiences at all levels of the organization. This policy allows staff the ability to have authentic and rewarding engagement with volunteers and volunteer programs.

Purpose

The purpose of this policy is to ensure that OPRD’s diverse volunteer programs are consistent in management and implementation, by providing staff support in volunteer management and program development through this policy and related procedures.

Goals

The goal of this policy is to accomplish the following:

- Engage volunteers in activities that support OPRD’s mission and goals while making volunteer safety a priority.
- Ensure volunteer programs are welcoming for all volunteers and the communities they serve by allowing participation of individuals who desire to support OPRD’s mission through volunteer service.
- Establish consistent management of volunteer programs.
- Ensure volunteer program policy is applicable to all volunteer programs, and allows for the development of new and modified volunteer programs.
- Provide clear direction of management unit and division responsibilities for coordinating volunteers.
- Build a recognition and appreciation program that incorporates all volunteers, regardless of division, location, or time commitment.

We will know we have achieved our goals if the following actions are noted:

- Volunteers' assignments support and promote stewardship of OPRD properties and supplement, but do not replace, the work performed by paid staff.
- OPRD includes the volunteer program in its goal to be a welcoming organization. This is demonstrated in how welcoming is included in all volunteer orientations and is a part of the on-boarding process.
- Appropriate safety training and orientation is provided to all volunteers.
- Volunteer programs abide by the same rules and measures for accountability across the organization.
- Staff are empowered to update and create new volunteer programs in response to agency strategic direction that is informed by community and agency needs.
- Volunteer recognition and appreciation initiatives that affirm the contributions of all volunteers are implemented.

Scope

Applicability: This policy applies to all OPRD divisions, management units, and staff who engage with volunteers.

Audience: This policy is to be used by all individuals with the responsibility to coordinate, develop, supervise, and/or manage volunteers and volunteer programs. OPRD volunteers are subject to this policy and its related procedures.

Authority

ORS 390.131: The authority for this policy is established in ORS 390.131, which states that the State Parks and Recreation Director is responsible for administering the legislatively imposed duties of the Parks and Recreation Department and its Commission.

Background

The statewide volunteer program began in 1977, enhancing visitor experience and providing additional benefit for park programs and facilities as a means of helping support staff. Both OPRD volunteer programs and OPRD's management of volunteer programs has evolved since the program's inception.

First called the Volunteer Services Department, and now termed Volunteer Programs, OPRD's volunteer management program, oversight, and responsibility has been moved into various divisions throughout the agency. In 2018, OPRD identified statewide consistency as a high priority for volunteer management. This priority places emphasis on the improvement of volunteer programs through policy and procedure development; which provide a framework for the maintenance and development of future volunteer programs.

POLICY PROVISIONS

Definitions

Adopt-A-Park: As defined in ORS 390.139, the Adopt-A-Park program is a volunteer program administered by OPRD, designed to allow volunteers to assist in the operation and maintenance of Oregon's state parks. Adopt-A-Park defines volunteers as an individual, a group of individuals, a volunteer group or service club, and/or any entity that is tax exempt under section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code.

Cooperative Associations: As defined in ORS 390.141, the Director of OPRD may enter into an agreement with a private, non-profit organization, to further the strategic priorities of OPRD, under which the organization shall solicit gifts, grants, and donations for the benefit of the agency. Cooperating associations are private, non-profit scientific, historic or educational associations organized solely for the purpose of providing interpretive services to recreational facilities in Oregon. As it relates to the OPRD volunteer program, the private, non-profit organization shall donate goods and services to the department, including volunteer service.

Episodic Volunteer: A volunteer who provides service for a specific event or task and makes a commitment for a one-time event. Examples include a volunteer who provides service for a one-day beach clean-up, community outreach event, or trail work party.

Long-Term Volunteer: Also classified as an individual volunteer, this refers to a volunteer who agrees to fulfill a certain day or hour requirement of service over an extended, specified period of time. This time period extends beyond a one-day service task. Examples include the Trail Ambassador program at Smith Rock and advisory board members.

OPRD Unit: Refers to all management units, parks, divisions, and units within OPRD. Term specifically used for any OPRD units that would manage or utilize volunteer programs. The supervisor of an OPRD unit, or their designee, is responsible for carrying out the duties assigned in this policy.

Orientation: An introductory meeting, delivered by OPRD staff that introduces volunteers to their service site and activities. Orientations may include a variety of topics that are unique to a particular volunteer assignment or OPRD unit. However, all OPRD orientations should include the following topics: introduction, communication overview, location overview, service performance expectations, welcoming, and safety.

Residential Volunteer: Including park hosts, these are volunteers who, as part of their volunteer service, reside temporarily on OPRD property.

Subject Worker: Refers to volunteers who receive remunerations as part of their volunteer service. OPRD currently has one volunteer assignment, Residential Volunteer, that is classified as a subject worker. As determined by the Oregon Department of Justice, Residential Volunteers, including Park Hosts, receive remuneration from the value of their host site and host site amenities provided by OPRD as part of their volunteer service.

Volunteer: Refers to an individual who is appointed or recruited by OPRD to perform a specified volunteer assignment, and serves at the request of the agency. A volunteer performs service without the promise, expectation, or receipt of compensation for services rendered. A volunteer is not an employee, and many of the rights held by employees do not apply to volunteers.

Volunteer Internship: A volunteer assignment that is a form of experiential learning that integrates knowledge and theory learned in the classroom with practical application and skills development in a professional setting. Unpaid volunteer internships must meet the requirements set forth in the U.S. Department of Labor, Fair Labor Standards Act.

Policy Statements

Volunteer Recruitment, Orientation, & On-boarding

1. OPRD does not discriminate against volunteers during recruitment for assignments based on race, color, national origin, sex, religion, age, disability, marital status, sexual orientation, gender or any other protected class as defined by state and federal law. Individuals have equal opportunity to apply for any OPRD volunteer assignment, and may not be removed from consideration on the basis of their protected class(es).
2. The OPRD unit is responsible for screening volunteer candidates to ensure potential volunteers meet the minimum requirements, as established by the OPRD unit, of a volunteer assignment and that those volunteers understand the expectations and duration of service.
3. All volunteers will receive an orientation and assignment specific training from their OPRD unit prior to beginning their volunteer service.

4. Volunteers in any assignment will sign and agree to the Volunteer Service Agreement (VSA) form. All VSAs include the State Volunteer Partial Waiver and Release of Rights form. Depending on the type of volunteer assignment and service commitment, the VSA may also include the code of conduct, vehicle use agreement, and additional expectations that are specific to the agreement between OPRD and a volunteer. Volunteers are expected to comply with all the statements and terms outlines in the VSA.
5. All volunteer assignments will have a volunteer assignment description, or a document which details the specific tasks and responsibilities that a volunteer engages in as part of their service, provided by their OPRD unit.

Criminal Background and Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) Records Checks

6. A criminal background check is required for volunteer assignments, if any of the following apply:
 - a. Interaction with vulnerable populations (children, the elderly, people with disabilities, etc.) is possible during volunteer service which is performed without direct OPRD staff oversight. Direct staff oversight involves having staff on-site, in the vicinity of the volunteer and engaged with the volunteer during service; or
 - b. Access to sensitive information and/or assets (cash handling, financial information, client data, given set of keys or key card for use during service etc.) is part of volunteer service; or
 - c. The volunteer service requires the volunteer to temporarily reside on OPRD property.
7. A driving records check is required for volunteer assignments, if any of the following apply:
 - a. Driving a state vehicle is part of volunteer service;
 - b. Driving an OPRD low speed vehicle on State or State Park roads (All-Terrain Vehicle (ATV), golf cart, gator, utility vehicle, etc.) is part of volunteer service; or
 - c. The OPRD unit manager identifies the volunteer's assignment necessitates use of the volunteer's personal vehicle, in fulfillment of travel which is directly related to volunteer service.
8. Volunteers for assignments that require a criminal background and/or driving records check will be approved or will fail the check based on the agency requirements in HR.080 Criminal History and Driving Records Checks Policy and SAF.10.020 Vehicle Use Policy.
9. As a matter of visitor, staff, and volunteer safety, volunteers requiring a criminal background check or driving records check must have a valid, approved driving records check before beginning service with OPRD. Criminal background and driving records checks for volunteers will expire one year from the date which it was completed, and must be current for volunteer service to continue. It is the responsibility of the OPRD unit to administer criminal background and driving records checks for volunteer assignments under its purview.

Expectations of Volunteer Service

10. OPRD unit staff will create and sustain an inclusive park culture where the volunteer community, and visitors served by those volunteers, feel welcome and are able to connect to OPRD's experiences, programs, and places. Volunteers are held to OPRD standards and expectations in supporting and promoting an inclusive environment with Oregon State Parks.
11. Only volunteers engaged in OPRD unit approved service activities may wear uniform items specified by the OPRD Uniform and Appearance Manual. Volunteers are prohibited from wearing an OPRD employee uniform, or from wearing uniform items when not engaged in volunteer service.
12. Volunteers are prohibited from creating publications, media, and social media accounts on behalf of OPRD and are also prohibited from using the OPRD brand contrary to COMM.050 Communications and Brand Management Policy. Volunteers who receive permission from their OPRD unit and the Communications Division, may respond to media requests and respond to official requests for public information.

End of Volunteer Service

13. OPRD may at any time, for any reason not prohibited by law, decide to end the volunteer's relationship with OPRD, or make changes in the nature of a volunteer's assignment. Behavior that violates the Volunteer Service Agreement, is grounds for immediate removal from volunteer service and/or OPRD property.

Adopt-a-Park

14. In addition to the program specifications found within ORS 390.139 Oregon Adopt-a-Park Program, Adopt-a-Park Agreements may expand to include entire management units, individual trails, structures, recreation areas, habitat areas, or other specific sites within the state park system.
15. Adopt-a-Park Agreements are made for one-year terms.
16. Adopt-a-Park partners must host a minimum of two days of volunteer service annually as part of their annual agreement.
17. Adopt-A-Park partners may enter into an Adopt-a-Park Agreement with a management unit, district, region, or at the statewide level.
 - a. Monetary sponsorship or direct compensation to a non-profit may not be included in an Adopt-a-Park Agreement. Agreements that involve financial contributions or sponsorships from OPRD must go through an alternative agreement process.
18. Adopt-a-Park groups must follow all policies and procedures related to youth volunteers when engaging individuals under 18 years of age in volunteer service.

Cooperative Associations (CA) Volunteer Programs

19. Cooperative Associations, as designated by ORS 390.141 Agreements between State Parks and Recreation Department and private organizations, may enter into a written agreement with an OPRD unit, in which the CA may use staff or volunteers to fulfill the provisions within the agreement. All volunteer programs, as part of the agreement, must be identified as either OPRD programs, or CA programs.

- a. OPRD programs are managed by an OPRD staff member. Volunteers in this program are OPRD volunteers and must follow VOL.010.000 Volunteer Management Policy.
 - i. CAs may support OPRD volunteer programs by supporting volunteer recruitment, general program administration, or an alternative method of assistance. The support provided by a CA must be specified in the agreement.
- b. CA programs are managed by a CA member. If the program was identified in the Cooperative Association Agreement, the CA is responsible to adhere to the requirements, objectives, and goals within the agreement. However, the management of volunteers for CA led programs is only subject to the policies and procedures of the CA.

Youth Volunteers

20. Volunteers who have not reached the age of 18 years must have the written consent of a parent or legal guardian prior to volunteering, which is obtained as part of the Volunteer Service Agreement Individual Volunteer form. Youth volunteers must be supervised by a parent, guardian, an OPRD manager approved adult, or OPRD staff member during the performance of volunteer service.
21. Youth ages 14 to 17 years may volunteer for individual volunteer assignments, in accordance with child labor laws and age-related guidelines on prohibited tasks and work environments from OAR 839-021-0006 to 839-021-0500 Rules Regulating the Employment of Minors in Oregon.
22. Youth 13 years and younger may only volunteer for episodic volunteer opportunities, with OPRD unit manager approval, when a parent, guardian, or an OPRD manager approved adult is volunteering for the same assignment, and a parent, guardian, or an OPRD manager approved adult will provide constant, direct supervision.
23. Volunteers under the age of 18 years are not permitted to volunteer in any role that has been classified as a subject worker, including park host, and are ineligible for workers' compensation.
24. Formal groups that involve youth in service, including schools and scout programs, must provide their own medical and tort liability insurance that meets OPRD and DAS required minimums, provide supervision of youth during service, and obtain and be responsible for parent/guardian permission for all youth volunteers participating in service. This may be achieved by having groups complete the School & Non-Profit Youth Agreement or by on-boarding groups as OPRD volunteers for the assignment type in which they are engaging.

Internships

25. OPRD units may develop unpaid internship volunteer assignments. Unpaid interns are classified as volunteers, and must be age 18 years or older. Intern volunteers must receive academic credit for their service or be currently enrolled in an academic or internship program (such as Optional Practical Training). The internship must meet the requirements for unpaid internships as set by the U.S. Department of Labor, Fair Labor Standards Act.

Appropriate Volunteer Assignments and Tasks

26. Volunteer assignments may include tasks that augment duties performed by paid staff. Volunteer tasks may not exclusively replace tasks normally assigned to paid staff. Augmenting staff duties is demonstrated in an OPRD unit's ability to absorb volunteer tasks or temporarily stop providing non-essential tasks whenever volunteers are unavailable to complete those tasks.
27. Volunteers are neither expected nor empowered to enforce OPRD park rules. Subject to PSP.040 Park Area Rule Enforcement Policy, volunteers may advise, or educate the public on park rules, but may not engage in rule compliance. Prohibited enforcement activities include, but are not limited to: issuing compliance requests verbally or in writing, and issuing violation notices.
28. Volunteer tasks, identified as low hazard or moderate hazard in the SAF.010.080.PR Volunteers and Safety Sensitive Tasks Procedure, may be included in volunteer assignment descriptions. Tasks identified as high hazard are prohibited from being a part of a volunteer assignment managed by OPRD units.
 - a. Exceptions allow for an OPRD unit to identify an individual volunteer to engage in high hazard tasks on a case-by-case basis. These exceptions are made for individuals, and not made for general volunteer assignments. The exceptions process must follow the procedure outlined in the SAF.010.080.PR Volunteers and Safety Sensitive Tasks Procedure, which includes obtaining District Manager approval.
29. Volunteer assignment modifications will be made for volunteers, whenever possible, to allow for inclusive and safe volunteer experiences.
 - a. Volunteers serving in any assignment will have their ability to perform assigned tasks assessed by their OPRD unit. If a volunteer shows an inability to perform a task safely, the OPRD unit may provide further training or modify the task, to support the volunteer in their performance of the assignment.
 - b. If modifications cannot be made which allows the volunteer to perform the minimum qualifications of an assignment, the OPRD unit may identify more appropriate assignments, or contact the Regional Program Coordinator to identify other available assignment options. If no other opportunities can be identified, and there are no alternative volunteer assignments, the volunteer assignment will be terminated.
30. Volunteers who are given duties related to cash handling are subject to the same cash handling controls, procedure, and training as OPRD employees. For details on cash handling controls, refer to the RRAP Manual.
31. Volunteers may use State property in the performance of their volunteer assignment with permission and instruction from their OPRD unit. Volunteers are not permitted to use State property for personal use, unless explicitly given permission by management. Managers need to seek approval following the SAF.010.080.PR Volunteers and Safety Sensitive Tasks Procedure for tools utilized in high hazard tasks.
32. OPRD unit managers may give permission for volunteers to use their own personal equipment during volunteer service when the equipment has been approved by the manager, and the volunteers have signed a Volunteer Service Agreement or Adopt-a-Park Agreement.

33. Volunteers may only operate utility vehicles and/or vehicles that require a Class C license as part of their volunteer assignment.
- a. To operate State vehicles or utility vehicles as part of volunteer service, volunteers must:
 - i. Possess a valid driver license;
 - ii. Be 18 years of age or older;
 - iii. Have a valid and approved driving records check on file; and
 - iv. Have a valid Volunteer Service Agreement and volunteer assignment description on file.
 - b. To operate a volunteer's personal vehicle as part of volunteer service:
 - v. All the volunteer requirements for operating state vehicles must be met;
 - vi. Following the permission requirements in FIN.060.000 Travel Policy, including OPRD unit permission for personal vehicle use in advance of driving.

Volunteer Assignment Schedules

34. All volunteer assignments must have a schedule that identifies the term of service, which includes a start and end date.
- a. For long-term and residential volunteers, an OPRD unit may set a standard schedule for a specific assignment, or mutually agree upon a schedule with an individual volunteer. This must be documented in writing, in either the volunteer assignment description or another document. Volunteers are able to engage in an assignment where they are on-call, but the on-call hours must be scheduled so it is clear when a volunteer is actively in service. If a volunteer is responding to an emergency during unscheduled hours on park property, and the response is within the scope of their volunteer assignment and direction they have received from their supervisor, they will be considered active, or on schedule, for the duration of their involvement of the response.
 - b. For episodic volunteers, the start and end time of volunteer service must be included in the Volunteer Service Agreement for each date of service.
 - c. Volunteer Hour Limits: An OPRD unit may set the minimum required hours for an assignment per shift, day, week, or month. OPRD does not set a maximum or cap on volunteer hours. OPRD units should use appropriate judgement in setting volunteer schedules and supervising volunteers to ensure OPRD does not take advantage of a volunteer's generosity, to prevent volunteer burnout, and to ensure each OPRD unit maintains each volunteer's safety as their primary objective when setting schedules and observing volunteer hours.
 - i. Volunteers roles that require an individual to serve greater than 30 hours per week, require written District Manager approval.

OPRD Staff and Volunteer Service

35. Current OPRD staff members are permitted to volunteer for OPRD volunteer assignments when service activities are unrelated to the staff members work, the service occurs during off work hours, and permission is obtained from the staff member's manager in advance. Managers should contact their Human Resources (HR) Business Partner to ensure staff volunteer service meets HR requirements.

36. It is the intent of this policy to allow for participation by community members, including family members of staff, to serve in supportive and established volunteer roles. When engaging volunteers in service, especially service of family members, staff are required to follow HR.050 Professional Standards, Ethics, and Conflict of Interest.

Safety and Communications

37. Each OPRD unit shall provide safety training for volunteers based on the volunteer assignment's performed tasks. The SAF.010.080.PR Volunteers and Safety Sensitive Tasks Procedure should be referenced to identify required safety training.
- a. Personal protective equipment that is required of staff to use while performing an activity, is also required for volunteers undertaking the same task.
 - b. Safety training of volunteers classified as subject workers must be documented and tracked by OPRD.
38. All volunteers must have a method for immediately communicating with their OPRD unit at all times while they are on-duty. If direct communication is not possible due to geographic or other limitations, then an OPRD unit is responsible to have a communications plan in place that establishes communication with volunteers at the beginning and end of their scheduled service hours.
39. OPRD units will provide assessment and feedback directly to volunteers during their service. If a volunteer is performing a volunteer assignment below expectations, OPRD supervisory staff will provide feedback and develop alternatives to improve volunteer performance whenever reasonable. Communication and discussion that results in an actionable plan to improve individual volunteer service or modify an assignment will be documented by OPRD.

Appreciation and Recognition

40. OPRD recognizes and values the contributions of all volunteers. As such, it will administer a statewide appreciation and recognition program which serves all OPRD unit volunteer programs, and recognizes the contributions of diverse volunteer assignments and service commitments.

Residential Volunteers

41. Residential volunteers may temporarily reside at the same OPRD property location (park, wayside, recreation area, etc.) for a maximum of 3 consecutive months.
- a. Exception: OPRD unit managers may extend a residential volunteer's time at an OPRD property for an additional time period, up to 3 months.
 - b. Exception: For an OPRD unit that wishes to extend a residential volunteer's service beyond the initial manager's extension at a property, a manager must receive written approval from the District Manager.
 - c. The intent of residential stay limits is to avoid having volunteers perform continuous service within a management unit, and ensure service opportunities are available for new volunteers.
42. Residential volunteers are representatives of OPRD, and are held to the highest appearance and performance standards. As such, volunteer's temporary residential sites will be safe, clean, and in orderly condition. Well-kept camping and recreational equipment may be in public view but all other personal property will be stored out of site.

Equipment and vehicles must be in good condition and may not have any large holes, tears, stains, or broken windows. Additionally, tarps, fabric, cardboard, tape, or other non-permanent materials may not be used to cover any physical defects in vehicle, camping, or recreational equipment that is visible to the public.

- a. Appropriate, non-permanent site adornments that maintain a safe, respectful, professional, and orderly appearance are permitted at the discretion of the OPRD unit manager.
43. Residential volunteers may not display hateful, hostile, or abusive symbols or language at their temporary residential site.
44. Political campaign signs may not be displayed in a residential volunteer's site. Political bumper stickers, or other permanent fixtures to vehicles should be hidden from public view when possible. OPRD unit managers may require residential volunteers to cover political stickers/permanent fixtures that may be seen by the public at their discretion. Refer to HR.050 Professional Standards, Ethics, and Conflict of Interest for additional guidance.
45. Residential volunteers may not make any permanent structures or changes to the site without advanced park manager approval. This includes, but is not limited to, planting garden beds or installing or removing posts or fences.
46. Commercial enterprises or home-based businesses may be operated by residential volunteers, or guests residing with them, when the business is:
 - a. Operated entirely inside the residence of the volunteer and is not visible to the public. Signs, banners, displays, or any solicitation or advertising related to the business are not permitted to be displayed anywhere on OPRD property.
 - b. The business does not generate vehicle or pedestrian traffic on park property.
 - c. The address for the business is not the OPRD property address and deliveries for the business are not delivered at the property.
47. Residential volunteers may not distribute non-OPRD related circulars, notices, leaflets, pamphlets or written or printed information of any kind within a park property unless they have first obtained permission from the park manager. Distribution of leaflets or any materials must follow OAR 736-010-0040(9) Visitor Conduct.
48. Pets are permitted at OPRD residential sites but must follow the OPRD's OAR 736-010-0030 Domestic Animals, and meet state of Oregon vaccination and licensing requirements in OAR 333-019-0017 Pet Licensing, Animal Bites, and Rabies: Vaccination for Animals. Residential volunteers are responsible for the actions and behavior of their pets, and pets that threaten the safety of the public, staff, or volunteers will be banned from OPRD properties.
49. Residential volunteers are responsible for the actions and behavior of their guests. Guests will follow all park rules, and, if applicable, are responsible to pay an extra vehicle fee. Inappropriate actions and behaviors of a guest that violate OPRD policy and/or rules may result in the guest, as well as the residential volunteer, being banned from OPRD properties. Non-volunteer guests are not permitted to be passengers in OPRD vehicles. Non-volunteer guests of residential volunteers are permitted to stay on OPRD property when the following criteria is met:
 - a. Non-volunteer guests stay with volunteers on OPRD property for a time period not exceeding 7 days. Guest stays exceeding 7 days must be approved by OPRD unit manager in advance of the guest's arrival.

- b. Non-volunteer guests, age 18 years and older, staying for a time period exceeding 7 days, must sign a Host Guest Opt Out of Service Form and pass a criminal background check based on the agency requirements in HR.080 Criminal History and Driving Records Checks Policy.
- c. Non-volunteer guests, age 17 years and younger are permitted with adequate parent/guardian supervision. Children 9 years and younger must be supervised at all times on OPRD property, following the age minimum guidelines in ORS 163.545 Child Neglect in the Second Degree. Additionally, youth guests are not permitted to be in, or reside at maintenance shop areas, or areas around park maintenance equipment.
